NURSE MICHAUD CONFESSES

RUSH TROOPS EAST TO SAVE GERMANS

"PRETTIEST GIRL" AND HER AUNT, MISS HELEN CARPENTER

Miss Carpenter, who is shown here with the Houlton victim, is prostrated by her niece's awful end.

ALARM IN SILESIA; SHELL TURK FORTS; EGYPT IS INVADED

It is officially announced from Petrograd that large numbers of German troops are being rushed from the western theatre of war to the East, where the Russian invasions of Posen and Silesia have, according to cable advices, caused much alarm to the Kaiser and the German general staff.

The shifting of troops on a big scale, following the council of war between Emperor William and his war chiefs of the East, presages a weakening of the German attack along the Franco-Belgian battle-front, in the opinion of the war experts, with the Germans operating solely on the defensive both East and West.

Already terror-stricken inhabitants of Silesia are reported fleeing from their homes, dispatches say, but they must remain for some time in security, for a message from Petrograd intimates that Russia may not proceed further with the invasion of Germany until her historic mission toward the Bosphorus is accomplished.

The official announcement is made at Petrograd that the German forces which invaded northwestern Poland have been driven back into East Prussia. This clears Russian territory of the invading troops except the extreme western and southwestern part of Russian Poland, where the Germans are striving to hold their positions against the repeated attacks of the Czar's army.

Additional successes against the Turkish forces in Armenia are also officially announced at the Russian capital.

Despite the claims of the Russian Admiralty that the Turkish fleet has taken refuge in the Bosphorus, Ottoman warships continue their attacks on Black Sea ports. Official announcement was made today that the town of Poti, in the government of Kutais, Transcaucasia, was bombarded on Saturday by a cruiser of the Breslau type. The cruiser is believed to have been damaged by the Russian artillery that replied.

GREAT SEA BATTLE NEAR

The next big naval battle of the war is expected to take place in the Black Sea within a few hours. The Turkish fleet apparently has escaped from the Bosphorus and the news that the Russian fleet has sailed from Sebastopol indicates that the Russian Admiralty intends if possible to stop the attacks being made by the Ottoman warships on Black Sea ports.

On Sunday Russian warships bombarded the towns of Keslu and Sugla on the coast of Asia Minor and sunk four Turkish transports, one of which was carrying troops.

3 TONS OF EXHIBITS IN SIEGEL CASE

GENESEO, N. Y., Nov. 9.—Henry Siegel, former "merchant prince" of New York and head of the Siegel stores, was placed on trial here today charged with grand larceny in connection with the failure of the stores which formerly made up his chain of enterprises.

The indictment on which Siegel was arraigned is one of fourteen found against him and his partner, Frank F. Vogel, in March last. If convicted the maximum penalty under the law is ten years. Although Siegel formerly controlled millions, the amount mentioned in the indictment is less than $200.

The Grand Jury room was given over as a storeroom for the exhibits of which there were more than three tons. They consisted chiefly of account books, bundles of bank books, cancelled checks and other documents.

PALE AND HAGGARD.

Mr. Siegel, who arrived in an automobile shortly before midnight, is stopping at the big "Tree Inn." Although he looked pale and haggard, he said he was feeling fine and ready to go on trial.

Assistant District Attorney Arthur Train of New York County, who will try the case instead of Conference Chairman S. Whittemore, the New York County District Attorney, has been here for several days preparing for the trial. He said he felt certain of securing a conviction.

The presiding judge was William W. Clark of the Supreme Court. The trial had been shifted from New York County to Livingston County as the result of a change of venue secured by John B. Stanchfield, counsel for Siegel.

"I expect to be acquitted and start up in business again," said Siegel. "Before five years have elapsed I hope to have paid all my creditors dollar for dollar. I still have plenty of influential friends who believe in my innocence after all, ready to back me. I would like nothing better than to start in at the scene of my defeat and work my way up from the bottom of the ladder. I am more than sixty years old and my ambitions are more than 42 inches, but mark my words, I am going to come good."

DIED ON TRIAL DAY.

Vogel died on February 18, the date originally set for the trial. The specific act charged in the indictment is that on June 14, 1913, a check for $10,000 was drawn by Siegel and signed by Siegel as president and vice-president of the Fourteenth Street store. The check was paid the same day. It was drawn to "cash."

This sum, it is claimed, formed a part of the $175,000 recently recovered by the National Bank of Commerce. These funds were discounted by Siegel before the alleged failure. Siegel is charged with the use of false financial statements of the Fourteenth Street store, the Simpson Crawford Company of New York and the Henry Siegel Company of Boston. The false financial statements are alleged to have caused a discrepancy of $5,250,000.

TELLS DETAILS OF PRETTIEST GIRL'S DEATH

PRESQUE ISLE, Nov. 9. — The confession of Katherine Michaud is the weapon upon which the State authorities are relying, in their murder accusation against Dr. Lionel E. Dudley in connection with the death of Mildred Sullivan, "prettiest girl in Aroostook," it became known today.

Miss Michaud has confessed everything she knows of the girl's death, it is declared, and though the full text of her confession has not been made public, the fact that it led directly to the finding of the body of the Sullivan girl has lent it great weight.

It was through the arrest of her partner, arrest that Miss Michaud broke utterance, was won by Dudley and Alice Pelletier had been arrested in Bangor and sped back to Maine on a medical plane. At the time of the arraignment of no time, there were reports that Miss Michaud would turn States evidence.

But she did not, for weeks there was a stalled. Without a clew, the police search for the body was hopeless and without the body, the State could proceed only with the charge of abortion.

But day after day pressure was brought upon Miss Michaud, and at last, on the advice of her parish priest, she told her story.

On the evidence she gave, the search for the body was renewed, and a certain spot it was gone over, literally inch by inch. All day Saturday the searchers worked, and Sunday morning as well. They think exactly at noon, when an hour and a half had elapsed since the search began, Percy Thompson was one of the searchers. He had a shovel with him and with it was scraping about in the leaves as he moved slowly through the woods.

RIBBON DISCOVERED.

It was just at 12:30 Sunday morning that Thompson since suddenly quit its swinging, scraping motion. He stood his eyes fastened upon a spot on the ground, his breath caught.

What he saw was a tiny, frazzled end of faded pink ribbon—only an inch or two of narrow ribbon. It was so completely out of place among the dead leaves of Fall, that the spot of color had instantly arrested his attention.

He stooped, calling out softly to one of the searchers who was near, and brushed the leaves away till the earth was bare.

The pink ribbon led downward—it was buried in the ground—and only

WAR PROTEST AT A. F. OF L. CONVENTION

ACCUSED DR. DUDLEY'S OWN STORY OF THE SULLIVAN GIRL CASE

Dr. Lionel E. Dudley, now under arrest on a charge of murder in Maine, in connection with the disappearance of Mildred Sullivan, told the AMERICAN the full story of his connection with the case on the day he was taken back to Maine from Boston to face the charges against him there.

This has been Dr. Dudley's only complete statement of his side of the case, and it is here reprinted for comparison with the charges now laid against him in Maine.

At the time this statement was given Dr. Dudley had been arrested in Boston as a "fugitive from justice," and was on the train on his way back to Maine in custody. The charge against him there was one of illegal surgery. Dr. Dudley's statement began:

"I feel that all this humiliation and notoriety is needless. If there is any justice in the world I shall be vindicated of this charge. My arrest in this high-handed manner looks like the work of scoundrels.

"It's the use of a Hingville county attorney and a would-be Sherlock Holmes sheriff. I've known these fellows all my life. I prepared for college in the same town with Lawlis, and I went to college with Archibald.

"Lawlis' is Deputy Sheriff Martin Lawlis, and "Archibald" is County Attorney Bernard Archibald, both of Aroostook County.

"I've always known them, and so the humiliation is all the worse," Dr. Dudley continued.

NOT WORRIED.

"These charges against me don't worry me in the least. Believe me, I'm losing no sleep on their account. My whole connection with the case is just this:

"On Thursday, September 3, Katherine Michaud, whom I had never seen before, came to my office with Mildred Sullivan, a total stranger to me.

"Miss Sullivan was in a highly nervous state, face flushed and with a rapid pulse. She wanted me to treat her professionally. I made a cursory examination, and found that she had already been treated in a bungling manner. She explained this. I told her that her condition was such that no legitimate physician would care to become involved in the case, and I flatly refused to have anything to do with it.

"Upon my refusal she became violently angry. She upbraided me bitterly and went away crying.

"I learned afterward that the girl went to Dr. Alexander Graves, another Presque Isle physician. He told me that he also refused to have anything to do with her.

"That was the first, last and only time I ever saw the girl. A week or so later her father and her uncle, Mr. Fred Michaud, came to see me at my office. They asked me what I knew, and I told them, frankly, all about it.

"I also told them that I was to go to Boston for my two weeks' vacation, and they both implored me to try and find some trace of the missing girl, which I promised to do.

MET PELLITIER girl.

"I went to Boston alone, and met the Pellitier girl, whom I had known in Presque Isle, through a mutual acquaintance in Cambridge. I had been there for a few days and had made up my mind to go back, my search for the Sullivan girl having proved fruitless, when the police swooped down upon me and we were arrested.

"I had intended leaving Boston anyway the next day, and this business interfered with my plans.

"What gets my goat in this 'fugitive from justice' business, I wasn't running away from anything. If it wasn't for this Hingville county attorney and this would-be Sherlock Holmes, trying to spend the county money, I would have returned voluntarily. They need only have sent for me.

"Well, that's about all there is to it. I hope they will find the Sullivan girl, and that soon. The sooner the better. I'm tired of being looked at as a criminal by everybody.

"When I have been cleared of these charges, I shall go to some small Western town and start all over. No doctor could ever do business in New England again after all this notoriety.

"As for the whereabouts of the Sullivan girl, I have an idea she is keeping quiet in order to avoid notoriety such as we are experiencing.

"Or some doctor guilty of what I refused to do may be keeping her quiet to protect himself.

"Or if she was unable to find anyone to treat her, she may have become despondent and committed suicide. Any one of these theories is possible, I think. But I have a strong feeling that the girl is alive and will be found."

WISP OF PINK RIBBON REVEALS GRAVE OF AROOSTOOK BELLE

By a Staff Correspondent of the American.

PRESQUE ISLE, Me., Nov. 9.—A bit of pink ribbon—a tiny narrow band and of the Helen pink tint—led to the finding of the body of Mildred Sullivan.

The little ribbon was the one which Mildred had placed in the lace work at the neck of her nightgown. One end of it lay among the leaves above the body and gave the clew which has resulted in the sensational developments of today in the mystery.

I was present when the body was discovered. I left the Presque Isle House with County Attorney Archibald, Sheriff Bryson and Deputy Sheriff Lawlis. We walked down the railroad tracks for about a mile. Then we cut over a hill to a clump of woods. We came to an old camp where we found fifty men or more gathered around a big fire.

I was given a long stick to help. The hunt began.

We crashed in the woods and retraced our tracks to leave no stone unturned.

After we had been working for an hour or so I heard a cry. It was the voice of Perley Tompkins.

"Come here," he called, his voice full of emotion.

He was only a few feet from where I was turning the leaves with my stick. I hastened to his side.

FIND THE RIBBON.

"Look, Sheriff," said.

I had already looked and had seen the tiny ribbon end, its pink nestling snugly in the brown and gold of the fallen leaves.

More carefully now Tompkins poked the leaves with his stick. More of the ribbon appeared. Other searchers came up. Soon there was a circle of eager faces around.

Gently now the leaves were removed a layer at a time, more and more of the ribbon coming to light.

A bit lower showed strands of Mildred's hair, the brown of it harmonizing with the color of the decaying leaves. A turn of a leaf or two revealed more hair, and the sight of it had an instant effect. Some moved back. All were plainly affected.

Still run the narrow band of pink downward.

Where did it lead?

All of us felt we knew, but none had spoken his thoughts.

But a few more thin layers now—still that narrow band of pink, slightly stained here and there by contact with a dampened leaf.

BIT OF WHITE SHOWS.

Then white appeared. Unerringly had the ribbon of pink led our eyes.

We saw where the pink fell away from the white—the part of Mildred's nightgown at her throat. Around her neck in and out of the lace ran the pink. The ends were loose. Once they had been tied into a little bow knot—perhaps with her own hands.

They took away more leaves—and dirt now, for around the body fresh turned earth lay cheaped, as if lightly pressed down. They bore away enough to show how Mildred had been buried.

She lay on her back. Her head seemed twisted around until it almost faced downward.

Her hands lay across her breast.

"Look!" exclaimed someone near me.

He pointed to the ring on one of the fingers—a ring with a small setting. Across it ran the pink ribbon.

IDENTIFIES BODY.

Many now turned away, with their eyes wet. Someone had the presence of mind to send for George Sullivan, Mildred's father, and soon he came running up, all out of breath and heartbroken.

The ring was shown him.

"It's my poor little girl's ring," he sobbed. And then he broke down completely. It was some time before he was able to look upon her body. At that he was rent from head to foot by great grief, and he sobbed piteously.

"My poor little girl," he moaned. "Her ring and her body—poor dear little Millie.

"It's the ring that I gave her myself."

Mr. Archibald, the county attorney, said the body should be left as it lay until the coroner arrived. The nearest medical examiner was at Caribou. Later he was notified.

Mildred's cruelly hasty grave lies in a small hollow on the side of a hill. It is a desolate place. Her body lay under two feet of leaves and earth and its only shroud was the night dress gathered up at the bosom with the pathetically slender, little pink ribbon.

I had looked at my watch when Tompkins had called out. It was exactly 10:30 a. m. All through the afternoon curious crowds came out from the town. Guards stood about the grave.

GRAVE IS GUARDED.

Late in the afternoon the county authorities pitched a tent and made ready for their weird all-night vigil a few feet from the remains. After nightfall dim lanterns flitted among the trees, giving an uncanny appearance from a distance.

The cold was sharp and chill, and clouds made the night dark as pitch. The watchers were armed and clad in heavy coats.

Here the guardians of Mildred's body chatted or warmed their hands at a fresh fire, while here in the village the townspeople discussed the finding of the body. They called the case one of the most brutal in the history of the State.

The thing that aroused most comment was the position of Mildred's head.

Her head had been so twisted about that the face was down, as I have said, and it was the general conviction that from the appearances the body must have been pushed under roots of trees. The whole countryside is wrought up as it has not been in years.

The little pink ribbon, as typifying the girlishness of the victim in the tragedy, and the brutality of her burial, are being discussed by all.

TENSE EXCITEMENT.

The discovery of the body came after a period of tense excitement in the town following the arrest of Dr. Dudley on Saturday. That night there was a rumor that the body had been found—in a well, the report said.

This rumor was the result of a letter received by Mildred's mother, which was opened and read by her sister and which said:

"Take road from Munson's Pond to Presque Isle; go about a mile; take road to right; go a short distance to old tumbled down house; a old house find a well, and in this well is the body of Mildred."

The letter had been mailed in Boston.

The next report was that Kate Michaud had made an important statement to the authorities. Just what this was we did not know until later, as the authorities at first refused to talk. Then the story came to us how Miss Michaud had confessed to a priest, and how the priest had urged her to confess to the authorities.

SEARCHED WOODS.

What she told the authorities, the latter said, led them to search the clump of woods on the hillside near the old camp. According to the county officials Miss Michaud said:

That Mildred's clothing was burned at the Pellitier house.

That Mildred died at 11 o'clock on a Friday night at the Pellitier house.

That her body was removed at midnight in an automobile in which were Miss Michaud, Dr. Dudley and Alice Pellitier.

That they drove about a mile out of the town to woods on the Fort Fairfield road (near some cottages), went off the main road and then buried the body.

The authorities say that but for Miss Michaud's statement they never would have known just where to make a search for the body.

And after they began their search it was the little ribbon of pink sticking out among the dead leaves that led them to the spot where the girl victim lay buried.

"Didn't Know the Sullivan Girl"---Alice Pellitier

I didn't even know the Sullivan girl—had only met her once. Now my name is being dragged through the mud on her account.

—Statement of Alice Pellitier, now accused as an accessory in the death of Mildred Sullivan.

Miss Pellitier made this statement on the day she was taken back from Boston to face the charges pending against her in Maine.

INQUEST TODAY IN MAINE CASE

the tiny end, which had caught his eye, protruded.

And the ground here showed evidences of having been disturbed.

Tompkins stood up and summoned the other searchers. When the officers in charge arrived he bent and, with his hands, gently loosened the dirt about the ribbon and scooped it away. The ribbon led them downward. Every moment those watching expected it to end. But it did not end.

When the little scooped hole was about six inches deep there came into sight a bit of cloth, muddied and damp now, but evidently once part of a dainty garment. The ribbon was inserted to eye-lets in this cloth.

SEND FOR CORONER.

Another moment and the men had made sure that a body was here buried. Then the officers called a halt, and word was sent for the coroner and other officials.

All day Sunday till late afternoon the men waited, only that bit of ribbon and the edge of the nightgown showing above the loose dirt that had filled the shallow grave. Late Sunday afternoon, when the proper officials arrived, further excavations were made, and the hand and finger ring which identified the girl were brought to light.

It was not till today that the body was removed from the hole into which it had been cramped. Today Floyd Tompkins, the county, took a number of men to the scene—which had been guarded by armed men through the rain of last night, and the coroner's jury was sworn in. The jurymen are George H. Larrabee, Harry B. Holmes, Harry R. Pipes, Wilfred Thompson, C. J. Hanson and W. R. Harford.

The work of removing the body from the hole was done by Medical Examiner C. W. Boone of Presque Isle, with Dr. F. H. Jackson of Houlton, Dr. Kilbourn of Presque Isle, and Dr. Putnam of Houlton.

The body lay on its back, the arms at the sides, the legs cramped into the small space, the neck twisted and the head pushed, face downward, under a root of a tree beside the grave.

BODY IS REMOVED.

It was taken to the undertaking rooms of R. J. Smith in Presque Isle, where the autopsy was at once performed.

Meanwhile Sheriff Bryson and Deputy Sheriff Lawlis had taken Alice Pellitier and Perley Pellitier, arrested as accessories, to Houlton. The Pellitier family came to the station when the party left, and laughed and chatted with the utmost unconcern.

The State's version of the girl's death—on which they base the murder charge against Dudley—is that Mildred Sullivan's death was hastened by drugs. It is said Katherine Michaud has confessed that fact, just as she confessed that she, Dr. Dudley and Miss Alice Pellitier buried the body where it was found.

It is understood Miss Michaud stated that Alice Pellitier treated Mildred Sullivan before Dr. Dudley was called in.

Dr. Dudley, Alice Pellitier and Miss Michaud were already out on bail in connection with the tragedy Dudley and Miss Michaud having been released on $4,000 bail each on the charge of having figured as principals to an illegal operation, and Alice Pellitier was out on $2,500 bail as an accessory after the fact. All had been bound over for the Aroostook County Grand Jury, which will meet November 17 at Houlton.

HIDDEN 85 DAY.

The revelations made by Miss Michaud put a different complexion on the whole case. It lifted it out of the plane of a malpractice case that had been made remarkable by the secretion of the victim's body for sixty-five days and converted it into one of the most engrossing mysteries in the history of Maine.

Dr. Dudley and the other defendants will be arraigned on the respective murder and accessory charges on Wednesday at Houlton. The original charges of less gravity are expected to be waived.

ARRESTED IN BOSTON.

The confession, arrests and finding of the body set the boundary country aflame with excitement.

From the outset of the case, which has a Massachusetts interest in view of the fact that the doctor and three girls were trailed to Boston and arrested, the weak spot in the defense has been Kate Michaud. She is a dark, slender girl in her twenties, a girl with a serious expression. She is a native of New Brunswick and has had training as a nurse.

At their arraignment in Houlton last month, when Alice Pellitier's younger sister, Etta, was exonerated, Kate Michaud showed signs of a breakdown. Dr. Dudley and Alice Pellitier. She sat on the opposite side of the court room and although she passed close to them disdained to speak or even glances their way.

Further antipathy was shown when Dr. Dudley's relatives, who furnished his bail, also furnished the Pellitier sisters with sureties and the same lawyer represented them, but Kate Michaud engaged a lawyer of her own. These things were freely commented on.

The prosecution had hopes. Next Kate was seen much in the company of Ambrose Edward Sullivan, Mildred Sullivan's sweetheart, at Houlton during the pre-liminary court proceedings. Bridge, at the start, turned States evidence and testified to the county officials, they say, that he engaged the room at Mrs. Southard's fair week and introduced her to Miss Michaud, with whom she stayed until the treatment on September 3, which brought about the mysterious disappearance of the "Belle of Aroostook County."

On Friday, Sheriff Bryson visited Miss Michaud at Wallergrass. Details of what happened at that important interview in the cottage of her parents have not been made public by the officials. They have jealously guarded at facts pertaining to that conference and the confession. It is impossible, under the circumstances, to give anything more than the substance of Miss Michaud's confession.

She is reported to have said in part:

The Sullivan girl died at the Pellitier house at 11 o'clock on the night of of September 4. We were all frightened. Dr. Dudley had been summoned to the and Alice Pellitier and I went with the body to a lonely place about a mile from Presque Isle.

We went along the Fort Fairfield road a bit and then turned down a deserted road toward a little woods. We went as far as we could in the car and then into a clump of trees where we took the body from the machine and dug a hole large enough to bury it. We all helped.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid liver.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They don't force them to unnatural activity.

If you have a "dark brown mouth" now and then—a bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver and are constipated, you'll find quick, sure and only pleasant results from one or two little Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take one or two every night just to keep right. Try them 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

Why Smith Succeeded

He was on the job—alert and energetic. Mental ability and physical activity made him shine in his old job and brought promotion.

Smith took care of himself.

Right there is the keynote of success—one must be mentally and physically fit.

A good start is to avoid the heavy, greasy foods that cause indigestion and kindred ills, and use a wholesome, building food such as

Grape-Nuts

This healthful, appetizing food is made of selected wheat and malted barley. It contains those vital mineral salts, so necessary to health, that are often lacking in the every-day diet.

The partial malting of the barley, with the long baking (about 20 hours), makes Grape-Nuts a food that digests easily and quickly.

Haughton and Bride Start on Honeymoon

Malcolm Graeme Haughton, brother of Percy D. Haughton, the Harvard football coach, and his bride, who was Miss Marion Shaw, daughter of Mrs. Quincy A. Shaw and divorced wife of Henry Pratt McKean of Pride's Crossing, are today on their honeymoon.

The couple were married by the Rev. W. H. Lyon of Brookline at the home of the bride's mother at No. 241 Perkins street, Jamaica Plain.

Mrs. Haughton, who is the niece of Professor Agassiz and a $10,000,000 heiress, secured a divorce from McKean in Philadelphia after they had lived together for over twenty-five years.

Last of New Haven Directors in Court

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Charles E. Brooker and James S. Elton, the last of the indicted New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad directors, to appear before Federal Judge Foster, put in appearance today and pleaded not guilty to the indictment charging them with violation of the Sherman act. They were given until November 23 to demur or take any other such action as they may desire. Each furnished $5,000 bail and was released.

Never wait for a cold to wear off—it wears away the lungs instead. Father John's Medicine gives prompt relief from colds and throat and lung troubles.

Free from alcohol and nerve-destroying drugs upon which many medicines depend for their temporary effect, and which are dangerous, because they weaken the body and allow the disease to get a deeper hold.

Autoists Warned Against Thieves

The police have sent out a warning that auto thieves are operating down town. The automobile of Thomas Fiske of No. 10 Shattuck street, Natick, was stolen from the corner of Franklin and Arch street Saturday, and later abandoned in Watertown. Fiske had removed his spark plug, but the thief evidently carried them in stock, for he slipped one into place and drove the machine away.

A Sure Way To End Dandruff

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve, and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

MRS. CAMERON TELLS OF TRACING WIFE NO. 2

How Donald Cameron, former deputy United States marshal in Boston, was traced by his first wife to Lawrence and later arrested there on a polygamy charge, and how wife No. 1 sought out wife No. 2 for an interview was told for the first time today, following the arraignment of Cameron in the West Roxbury Court.

Associate Judge Ahern continued the case until November 19, holding Cameron in $1000 on the polygamy charge and in $150 on a non-support count.

Both women faced him in the courtroom. Wife No. 1 before her marriage was Miss Fannie Whibley, and she is the mother of ten children. Wife No. 2 is a woman Cameron met while performing his duty as deputy marshal. She was a "white slaver's" victim.

After the court proceedings wife No. 1 said:

SAYS PAY WAS STOPPED.

"For the past year my husband has been absenting himself from our home. Our funds grew lower and lower.

"My husband told me that because I had threatened to have him arrested for deserting his family after repeated pleas by me to come back and take care of us. He does not deserve any leniency. He ought to be sentenced to suffer for the wrong he has done his family.

"I was married to him in Leeds, Eng., May 25, 1903."

Both women sat on the same bench in the courtroom today—but at opposite ends, about twenty feet apart. Neither glanced at or spoke to the other. Wife No. 1 was the first to arrive, and wife No. 2 coming in later, had to pass by her to reach the other end of the settee for women witnesses.

Wife No. 1 was dressed in a blue dress, with three-quarter length blue coat, black hat with white trimmings, and appeared refined and very attractive.

Wife No. 2 was fashionably dressed in a blue silk dress, the waist trimmed with gold, with light coat trimmed with fur, and black hat with black and white plumes. She wore a heavy veil.

Wife No. 1 had nothing to say to Cameron, but wife No. 2 talked to him for several minutes as he sat in the dock. She also conversed with Arthur R. V. Hill, his counsel.

SECOND WIFE HELD.

Attorney Hill waived the reading of the complaint and entered pleas of not guilty to the polygamy and non-support accusations. Special Officer Frank V. Sullivan of the Roxbury Crossing station, who arrested Cameron, conducted the prosecution, asking for a continuance, it's heavy bonds and that wife No. 2 be held as a material government witness.

Wife No. 2 was apparently surprised at this, and her mouth shut tight. She was held in $500 by Judge Ahern. Wife No. 2 is twenty years old. She was the victim of Arthur H. Richards of Lowell. Through the work of Cameron as deputy marshal Richards was convicted of the violating of the Mann white slave act and was sentenced to twelve years in the Charlestown State Prison.

According to the police Cameron was preparing to sail for England to join the British army fighting in France.

Mrs. Donald Cameron, wife No. 1, on left, the mother of the children of former United States deputy marshal; on right, woman who is held as wife No. 2; below is Cameron, accused husband.

IN FIVE MINUTES NO SICK STOMACH INDIGESTION, GAS

"Pape's Dispepsin" is the quickest and surest Stomach relief.

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fullness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach headache, you can surely get relief in five minutes.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula, plainly printed on these fifty-cent cases of Pape's Diapepsin, then you will understand why dyspeptic troubles of all kinds must go, and why it relieves sour, out-of-order stomachs or indigestion in five minutes.

"Pape's Diapepsin" is harmless; tastes like candy, though each dose will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides, it makes you go to the table with a healthy appetite; but what will please you most, is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for biliousness or constipation.

This city will have many "Pape's Diapepsin" cranks, as some people will call them, but you will be enthusiastic about this splendid stomach preparation, too, if you ever take it for indigestion, gases, heartburn, sourness, dyspepsia or any stomach misery.

Get some now, this minute, and rid yourself of stomach misery and indigestion in five minutes.

Dr. Myers Urges Ministers to Keep on Preaching Hell

"Take your knife prayers and North Pole sermons out of Boston," urged Rev. Dr. Cortland Myers, pastor of the Tremont Temple, at the annual meeting of the Evangelical Association of Greater Boston in Park Street Church today. More than 2000 hundred ministers were present. He called upon ministers to give up liberal theology and the other evil criticism of the Bible.

"You want to have a passion for human souls for lost men and women. They want you to come after them.

"You do not want to give up preaching hell. There is a hell. Thank God for it. Thank God for hellfire on the corner, right here where I am preaching. Some people right here in Boston would put hell out of commission, but they can not do it. They put a new translation upon certain words of the Bible, but you can not blot hell out of life."

A prolonged applause greeted the speaker at this remark.

"Many people are reading the Sermon on the Mount in the Bible, but they never get to the crucifixion of Christ."

BOSTON GIRL PLAYS VIOLIN FOR WOUNDED

Three thousand wounded soldiers in the great City Hospital at Berlin listened for an hour to a recital upon the violin by a little Boston girl, Irma Seydel, recently, and when she had concluded, cheered and applauded her until the young girl kissed her hands to them a score of times.

Irma Seydel is the daughter of F. Seydel who plays the bass fiddle in the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Boston audiences made her favorites there. Three years ago, in short skirts and with a pigtail down her back, the child astonished an audience at the Boston Opera House when she played a Vieuxtemps concerto with the opera orchestra.

A success in Europe is necessary before an artist can be famous and her father had been arranging for years to have her appear with the great orchestras of Germany. The Seydels went to Berlin just before the war broke out and a tour of thirty concerts had been arranged for Miss Seydel. The war naturally has interfered with the musical season and after ten concerts Miss Seydel is now on her way home.

The father hastened back ahead of her to join the Boston orchestra and is now in this city. He was in Berlin two weeks ago.

"I have seen wounded German soldiers who have been mutilated by Cossacks and I have heard that the Belgian peasant women have revenged their losses upon wounded Germans, but the German people do not commit atrocities," he said. "Both there are in all armies, but our officers would quickly shoot any soldier who committed the crimes charged against us."

INVASION OF EGYPT BY TURKISH FORCES

war" by the head of the faith has had its effect on the native population.

Official announcement was made by the Ottoman embassy at Rome today that a Turkish army had invaded Egypt.

The Turkish forts at Sedil Bahr and Koumkale at the western end of the Dardanelles are slowly crumbling beneath the bombardment of British and French warships, according to a wireless message received at Athens. A number of explosions are said to have occurred inside the forts.

A Constantinople dispatch says martial law was proclaimed there today. A number of arrests have been made and some of the prisoners executed. The dispatch would seem to confirm a dispatch of last week saying a revolt had broken out in the Turkish capital.

Official announcement was made at Paris this afternoon that the Germans have taken a new offensive against Dixmude and in the region of Ypres, but that their attacks have everywhere been repulsed by the allies. New attacks by the Germans in Alsace have also been repulsed. At some points the French have made an advance, but this has been slight, it is said, because of the attacks of the Germans and a heavy fog.

The artillery duel which is proceeding along the banks of the canal of La Bassee is said to be one of the most terrific in the history of modern warfare. The big guns are in action day and night. Determined attacks are being directed against the line of the French and British at Aix-la-Noulette, a village which lies at the foot of a wooded chain of hills, combing the road from Arras to Bethune. The village has been nearly wiped out by the German shells. The French artillery is outnumbered, but the German infantry and cavalry are in less force than those of the allies.

The fall of Tsing-Tao is declared in a German official statement today to have no effect upon the main issue involved in the great war. It is openly charged that Japan is attempting to bring China into the war in order that a great slice of her territory may be taken for Japanese expansion.

SYRUP OF FIGS FOR CROSS, SICK FEVERISH CHILD

If Little Stomach Is Sour, Liver Torpid or Bowels Clogged.

Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Syrup of Figs," because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, and they become tightly packed full of constipation and stomach disorders. When cross, feverish, restless, sick if tongue is coated, then give this delicious "fruit laxative." Children love it, and it can not cause injury. No difference what ails your little one—if full of cold, or a sore throat, diarrhoea, stomach-ache, bad breath, measles, this gentle "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." We make no other kind. Hand back with contempt any other fig syrup.

JAPANESE OCCUPY KIAO-CHAU TODAY; GERMANS PRISONERS

By MERRIT F. PRESTON.

Staff Correspondent of the American.

TOKIO, Nov. 9.—The final meeting between Japanese and German representatives to arrange the surrender of Kiao-Chau to the allies was held today. The commander of the British forces which assisted in the reduction of the fortress of Tsing Tau agreed to any conditions which suited the Japanese.

The Japanese will take possession of Kiao-Chau tomorrow and will probably topple the forts which the Germans were compelled to surrender. The heavy shells from the Japanese howitzers completely demolished some of these German works.

The Admiralty has ordered the work of clearing up Kiao-Chau harbor to begin at once. Navigation has been made nearly impossible by mines and ships which were purposely sunk by the Germans.

The victory is still being celebrated. Flags are floating everywhere and the Japanese press is filled with laudatory articles.

The opinion expressed by the authoritative Japan Mail is that Germanic influence in the East has been wiped out forever.

The final disposition of Kiao-Chau is uncertain, but already political leaders are coming forward to urge the retention of the territory. These leaders in the scheme for territorial aggrandizement declare the program to be followed should be this:

Germany's present ninety-year lease with Japan for Kiao-Chau should be broken and a similar lease granted to Japan. Germany may be paid an indemnity for the loss of her captured territory.

The terms of surrender provide that Governor-General Meyer Waldeck and all the surviving German soldiers shall be made prisoners of war and that all the property of Germany in Kiao-Chau be handed over to the Japanese in its present condition. It is now said that the Japanese casualties in the final assault were 158.

OFFICIAL WAR REPORTS

RUSSIAN.

Russian Coat of Arms

PETROGRAD, Nov. 9. — All Germans who have been driven out of Russian territory on the Thorn - Mlawa - Ilupoehn front and have retreated into East Prussia. The enemy's invasion in this quarter has completely collapsed.

Except in the west and southwest, the soil of Poland has been cleared of the invaders, and the German forces in those regions will be compelled to withdraw as a result of the activity of our cavalry, who have invaded Silesia and cut railroad communication at Pleschen. As a result of the pertinax operations in which they have been placed by our great victories, the Germans are drawing upon their forces in the west to strengthen their lines.

Many detachments are being transported through Germany from the western to the eastern front. This will result in weakening the lines opposing the Anglo-French-Belgium forces in the west.

Two Turkish divisions with forty-eight pieces of field artillery and several guns, supported by a large force of Kurd cavalry, moved from the direction of Hamadan at Hassanikalah (about twenty-one miles east of Feteruny) toward the position at Koprikoi, which we occupied Friday night.

The operations thus far have wholly favorable to Russian arms. The Turks show surprising organization, and this is attributed to training given them by German officers.

FRENCH.

French Coat of Arms

PARIS, Nov. 9. —On our left wing the Germans have taken a new offensive against Dixmude and in the region of Ypres, particularly to the southeast of the latter town. Their attacks were repulsed everywhere by the end of the day.

On the entire front between Dixmude and the Lys we have progressed. At most of the points our advance, however, is slow because of the offensive undertaken by the enemy and the very effective organizations that he has already had time to make around some points of support.

Since the beginning of the battle the fog also has rendered operations difficult, especially between the Lys and the Aisne.

In the centre on the Aisne the progress indicated in the communique of yesterday has been maintained. In the Argonne and around Verdun there were only minor engagements.

On our right wing, in Lorraine, there is nothing to report. In Alsace new attacks by the Germans against the heights of the pass of Ste. Marie have ended only in a pronounced check for them.

TURKISH.

Turkish Coat of Arms

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 9.—With the help of the Almighty the Turkish army crossed Egyptian frontier yesterday. The Ottoman fleet in the Black Sea has sought refuge in the military ports of Russia. The Ottoman fleet has bombarded Poti, causing heavy damage.

The English fleet has departed from the waters of Akaba, leaving one cruiser there.

The Great White Throne; Its Judgment Now Due

FINANCIAL, ECCLESIASTICAL AND SOCIAL SHAKINGS

"Men's Hearts Failing Them for Fear"—Apprehending Troubles Impending—Selfishness Blighting Humanity—Messiah's Throne of Purity and Justice and Love is Earth's Only Hope.

PASTOR RUSSELL

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 8.—Pastor Russell preached today at the Colonial Theatre from the text: "I saw a Great White Throne, and Him that sat on it, from whose face the earth and the heaven fled away; and there was found no place for them." (Revelation 20:11.) The Pastor had a request for further light on a previous discourse which he answered before treating today's text. As it is of peculiar interest we give it in full. He had applied Hebrews 12:27 to our day, declaring now in progress the removing of all things shakable, that only things harmonious with Divine standards, which cannot be shaken, may remain. He held that the shaking heavens represented Churchianity — Ecclesiasticism — and the shaking earth represented social, financial and political affairs. His questioner wanted to know what financial shakings are to be expected. The response follows—

Stocks and Bonds to Be Shaken.

Everything false, bogus, inequitable, will be shaken. In financial parlance this is equivalent to saying that the "water" will be squeezed out of all the stocks and bonds. By methods once sanctioned, but now everywhere reprehended, stocks and bonds have been issued for sums far beyond the actual value of the properties. These stocks and bonds have cost their present owners in varying sums from nothing up to par; but their actual value is what the properties would cost, plus a reasonable percentage of allowance for right of way and business "good will." In ordinary times these had a market value built upon hope of their future prosperity. Now, however, the general public has become aware of the real situation and is fearful to touch at any price these shares and bonds of over-capitalized companies, and the most sound and solvent of them share the public distrust. Now, in the opening of the New Dispensation, when everything is being "shaken," we are to expect that all such stocks and bonds will be shaken in value until everything like dishonesty and inequity shall have been shaken out.

Forty years ago the world's great bankers and financiers concluded that it would be to their interest to demonetize silver and have only a gold standard. This finally accomplished when trade depression ensued; all outside the ranks of the world's monetary supply and enabled the bankers the better to control the entire situation throughout the world. By an elaborate banking system (values in name respects), it made each gold dollar chase flash and do the work of five dollars or ten dollars, assisted by bank checks and drafts. Thus the profits of the larger banks increased amazingly by reason of higher discount and interest charges, making them rich at the public expense.

The public, of course, acquiesced in the law demonetizing silver and issuing gold the sinale standard. But they did it under misapprehension, because they believed the bankers' assertion that this was really the best thing for the people, and not merely a measure in the interest of the bankers. Now all the people of the people. It is perhaps not fair to say that less than one-half of the bankers understood the philosophy of the matter; the others were guided by the wealthier and more astute who did fully understand.

The result has been great profits to the bankers, and great power; for without them, railroad stocks and bonds could not be handled successfully. The bankers took over large issues of railroad stocks and bonds, by what is known as the underwriting process. They were capable sales agents for the bonds at a good round percentage of profit, advancing money on the bonds and holding them for sale to the public.

The Day of Reckoning.

Now we see fulfilled the Scripture declaration, "He will thoroughly purge his own threshing floor" (Job 3:13.) How so, do you ask? I reply that the great banks have their vaults well filled with these bonds and stocks on which they had hoped to make large profits; but which, on the contrary, they are now unable to sell at any price. These stocks and bonds reckoned in as part of the banks' assets, show them to be wealthy, while, as a matter of fact, much of the "water" is to be taken out of these stocks and bonds. It will show an immense shrinkage in the resources of these banks. They will become suddenly poor and actually losing a condition of poverty, and religious—is of the Lord, and not accidental.

Under normal conditions American business should be prosperous as never before, because our commercial competitors are at war, and unable to properly attend to their commercial interests. Likewise, American securities should be in demand, because all securities of foreign countries have depreciated by the war. But with the great shrinkage in the value of gold, the business of the entire world is stagnated. The world's needs and wants are as great as ever, but it has not the gold with which to purchase. The demonetization of silver seems to be referred to by the Prophet (Ezekiel 7:19) saying, "They shall cast their silver into the street"—treat it as a commodity and not as money. The Prophet thus tells how gold will become scarce and essentially the only medium by which the people have it as though it were an unclean thing, as the Prophet implies—"Their gold shall be removed." Thus neither silver nor gold will be available.

Financial magnates, and the bankers who hold their securities, perceive that if it is difficult to raise money for the meeting of the interest on the bonds, it will be more difficult to issue new bonds to replace maturing ones, no matter how sound and well managed the railway may be. It is my opinion that the liquidation of the financial and political powers of the earth is great, as they have, since the future? Their well-grounded fears were prophesied by our Saviour as one of the signs of the present time: "Men's hearts failing them for fear and for looking after those things coming upon the earth"—social order—and because of the shaking of the heavens, the ecclesiastical systems.—Luke 21:26.

Fear Humanity's Bane.

The speaker then paused to his text, outlined its meaning, and said:

Sin made moral cowards of our race. From early infancy fear and superstition, especially in respect to things future, have been impressed upon us. We realize that we are imperfect, that our God is perfect, that perfection is the only standard which He could approve, and that some kind of punishment for sin must be expected. The Adversary, taking advantage of our weak fathers, misrepresented the Almighty, and has used our fears to intensify them, from time and to a thousand years. Its whitewash symbolizes the purity, the justice, of His Kingdom and Righteousness under the whole heavens.

The heavens of earth which will flee from the presence of the great Humanard will not be the heavens of God's Throne, nor the earth which He has given to the children of men. The heavens and earth which will flee away, and for which no place will be found, are, of course, the symbolical ones.

In Bible symbology the earth represents established institutions; the sea, the restless, dissatisfied masses of humanity; and the mountains, human governments, kingdoms, which constitute the backbone of present social institutions. The symbolic heavens represent the spiritual influences—Ecclesiasticism, Churchianity. Thus interpreted, our text declares that when Messiah assumes control of the world, the result will be that the social system of today, as well as present day ecclesiasticism will pass out of existence—no place will be found for them.

Satan Now the Prince.

Some may ask, Whatever may be said of the four thousand years before the coming of Christ, may it not be claimed that the Gospel age ending ever since His ascension to the right hand of God? We answer, Of the world Satan has been reigning as the King of earth for the past thirteen centuries, there should be something in the Bible to so teach.

On the contrary the Master's own words tell us that Satan is the Prince of this age; that Christ's Kingdom is not of this world (Age); that He will come again and receive His followers to Himself; that He went into a far country to receive title to His Kingdom and to return to take possession of it; and that at His Second Coming He will be the great King of Glory. (John 14:16, 30; 18:36; Matthew 21:33; 25:14, 31.

When we seek in the pages of history during the past eighteen centuries we are impressed that Messiah has not been King. To think of Him as King, and to pray to Him as King, and to look forward to His coming as the time when He will be King, would be to charge Him with responsibility for the bloody wars, the cruelties—American wars, famines and pestilences. Surely no right-minded person, after mature consideration, can rationally accept the theory that we have been living during the Reign of Righteousness for the blessing of the whole world, the uplifting of humanity.

No one can think that the Reign of the great Mediator is in the past. We must agree with our text that it is in the future, and that when established, its effect upon present institutions—political, social, financial, religious—will be such that they will flee away to where will be found for them. From this standpoint, indeed there is hope for the world.

Today we are living at the climax of civilization. Yet we behold more clearly than ever before that the deeply-ingrained selfishness of humanity is a blight upon all their doings. Selfishness is to be found everywhere. Although a certain degree of civilization has restrained us, as violators of that standard are styled criminals, nevertheless, in accordance with the world's morality, justice, Men's keen intellects find opportunities for coming within the law and yet committing theft, murder, etc., without danger of punishment.

The Great White Throne Judgment.

Neither Jehovah God nor His Representative, Messiah, can in any sense or degree be a party to injustice or oppression. That such injustice has been permitted, that inequity has been the rule for centuries, can be accounted for by the fact that during all this period the prince of this world, the god of this age, Satan, Death, the enemy of Satan, "The Prince of this world," and of the darkness of selfishness and sin—all of which have been dominant throughout the world has not been under the dominion of Messiah, the Representative of Jehovah and His righteousness, and love.

The New Dispensation, which Messiah's Kingdom will usher in is pictured in our text. It will be the world-wide reign of truth, love, righteousness, justice, truth—a Great White Throne. No wonder the heaven and the earth—all the heavens and earth, representing the old order of things—social, ecclesiastical—will vanish away!

But let no one think for a moment that ecclesiastical heavens, financial and social and political earths will voluntarily acknowledge that the present has been a failure, and that the world and to all the principles of His absolute righteousness. On the contrary, they will intrench themselves more and more in their own freedom to manage their own affairs, to the exclusion of the special privileges which have come into their possession. Even now we see the beginning of the end of this Age, and as it is the very time when the Lord, through the Prophet Daniel, calls the attention of earnest to recognize the true situation of our wonderful day and hour of Messiah's presence, and that He should be recognized and His principles of righteousness established.

But not The promises declares that we are living at a time when the people, the world will have foolish notions as to how they will think that by their own strength they can reconstruct society, can bring in the golden age by law, by socialism, or by anarchy. The people must learn that their help is in the Lord and not in their own frail arm. They must see the force of the Scripture, "Cursed are all that put their trust in Jehovah."

On the other hand, the money kings, earthly rulers and ecclesiastical princes are taking counsel together for the preservation of present inequities and for the support of the world's tottering. The Lord declares that in this they are banding themselves together against the Divine appointed King—Messiah. For over a century 10,000 people have been falling asleep daily, and every seafarer to restrain it. Earth's potentates perceive the rising tide of human intelligence and of demands for equal rights. They perceive that unless something be done to counteract the present tendencies, the special advantages of the privileged classes will disappear. Even now they are taking counsel together how to break the restraints which the people are putting upon them, and how to secure a return of the old conservatism, such as prevailed a century ago, but upon which the intelligence of today is rapidly looking under restraint more intelligent masses.

"No Danger from Cattle Plague to Public"—Armour

The public is assured that there is no danger from meat consumption as a result of the hoof and mouth disease, now epidemic among American cattle. J. Ogden Armour issued a statement as follows:

Meat eaters need have no fear from the disease. No particle of meat from an infected animal is used, even for soap, fertilizer or leather. Every such animal is shot and buried in quicklime at once. Government inspectors have examined carefully every bit of meat sold by the packers, and they have been doubly watchful for a week. The disease is detected quickly and there is not one chance for harm or deterioration to any meat sold.

BERKMAN AND 'HELEN OF TROY' HELD IN RIOT

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—After a fight, which gradually grew into the proportions of a riot, Alexander Berkman, the Anarchist, and four of his followers were arrested early today at No. 214 West Ninth street. The other prisoners were Helen Goldblaat, known to the police as "Helen of Troy," her sister, Lillian Goldblaat, William Shappoff and Abraham Blecker.

The clash started in front of the West Ninth street building when a policeman, who had been sent to that vicinity to quell a disturbance, ordered Berkman and his friends who had all been banqueting together to make less noise. The policeman was immediately surrounded and "Helen of Troy" started things by trying to remove the policeman's uniform without going to the trouble of unbuttoning it.

In this operation she was ably assisted by half a dozen others and the policeman, seeing how things were going, rapped for aid. In the meanwhile residents of the neighborhood had been telephoning in riot calls to various police stations and policemen were running up from several different directions.

Berkman and his four companions were finally singled out as the leaders of the fight and were taken to the Essex Market Court. Twenty-five other followers of the Anarchist leader crowded into the courtroom and for a time it looked as though the battle would be reopened there.

"This country certainly has Russia beat when a man cannot go to a banquet with his friends without getting arrested for it," declared Berkman.

"Helen of Troy" said she thought it was worse than Russia.

Fur Trimming—The Dominant Style Note in

Women's Suits

Many of the new styles in suits are showing fur trimmings. Other style tendencies now approved by fashion are shorter coats and more roomy skirts.

Broadcloth is still supreme among materials in favor, but with the advent of colder weather the woolier, warmer fabrics such as cheviots and mixtures are also in demand. Every suit offered here is short coat fur-trimmed models.

Why Throat Specialists Prescribe Formamint

IT is because, long before you ever heard of Formamint, it was submitted to the leading specialists of the world for trial in the great hospitals and in private practice, and for examination chemically and microscopically.

Not until a verdict was rendered on its extraordinary germ-killing power, on its harmlessness to body tissues, and on its welcome superiority to the awkward gargles and disagreeable mouth washes, was Formamint brought directly to your attention. Formamint combines a powerful germ-destroying agent in the form of a delicious tablet, which melts in the mouth fluids and bathes the sore parts in a soothing and healing solution.

It is a pleasure to use Formamint. It tastes like a confection, in spite of its fatal action on germs, and is absolutely harmless to the membrane in the mouth of even a child.

A. WULFING & CO., 20K Irving Pl., New York

Professor O. Chiari, M. D., Director of the Clinic for Throat and Nose Diseases, Vienna, writes:
"FORMAMINT" has been used in a large number of patients with the greatest success as a means of purging the mouth cleanse tion and without the least harmful reaction.

From an article in "The Lancet" March 6th, 1909
"The special effect of a neutral lozenge is to keep part of the mouth or throat free if even it is constantly for a time in a drug state of antiseptics. I know of no [illegible] Formamint."

FREE

So that you may see how effective these pleasant Formamint Tablets are in mouth and throat troubles, we will gladly mail you a generous sample tube on receipt of a 2c. stamp to pay postage. Write for it today.

The best news of the season is that Furs are cheaper than for years—and the best kind of an opportunity to prove this is afforded by the

Annual November Sale of Filene Furs

Beginning Tomorrow

We could quote you item after item where we are selling good furs for about what we had to pay for them two years ago.

We could tell you of depression among fur manufacturers, due partly to present conditions, partly to the accumulation of several unfavorable seasons.

We could go over case after case where manufacturers were in the most receptive kind of mood when we went to them for stock for this important annual event—and how, time after time, we landed prizes better than we have been able to present to you for many seasons.

The furs you want to buy at prices lower than you had expected to pay

Take the examples below: $25 buys a serviceable fur SET today, where it used to pay for a MUFF alone; and less than $75 buys a hand some Set that used to cost $100 or more. $62.50 buys a handsome glossy COAT of Hudson Seal. Last year our lowest Hudson Seal Coat was $100.

Lower prices without the least deviation from Filene SAFE quality. Read them:

Black Fox

Black Fox is the most popular selling fur of the day. The demand has been so large that it has been exceedingly difficult to hold prices in the face of a steady increase in the cost of raw skins.

JEANNETTE AND JOHNSON PROMISE CLOSE BATTLE TOMORROW AT ATLAS CLUB

JEANNETTE AND JOHNSON MEET AT ATLAS A. A.

BOUTS TONIGHT.

Riverside B. C., Cambridge, amateur bouts.
Freddie Welsh vs. Charley White, Milwaukee.
Mike Gibbons vs. Young Mike Donovan and Kid Lewis vs. Phil Bloom, New York.
Young Dyson vs. A. Couches, New York.
Jack Dillon vs. Charley Weinert, Philadelphia.
Newport, R. I., bouts.
Mark Spencer vs. Durkey Griffin, Brooklyn.

By RINGSIDE.

BOSTON will get back on the boxing map this week again. With the international six-day bike race a thing of the past, the Atlas A. A. will stage a 12-round bout between Joe Jeanette and battling Jim Johnson, two husky smoke heavyweights, at the Arena tomorrow night. No championship title will change hands as a result of the tussle, but record for this a big crowd is expected to turn out to witness the festivities.

The Riverside Boat Club will also hold a show. It has arranged an attractive series of amateur bouts which will be held in Cyprus Hall, Cambridge, tonight.

The B. A. A. will also conduct an amateur tournament this week. The trial contests will take place Wednesday night, while the final matches will be staged Saturday evening.

There will also be shows at the various athletic clubs throughout New England. The fight "fans" will therefore, have enough to occupy their attention, and if the boxers come up to expectations there should be plenty of rugged fighting and some fast, clever boxing.

JOE JEANETTE rules a 10 to 7 favorite for his 12-round bout with Battling Jim Johnson, which will be held before the Atlas Club. The wise men figure that the Hoboken man's boxing skill and speed will enable him to outpoint his hard-hitting opponent.

Johnson does not lack backers and many short-end bets have been made. This has been a great year for short-enders and Johnson may put over another surprise. It seems as though the easiest way to beat any athlete this year is by making him a choice in the betting. He will then almost surely be beaten.

Jeanette and Johnson have engaged in a number of close battles. Their last three meetings have been no-decision affairs and they are anxious to clash in this city where a referee's verdict can be rendered.

PATSEY HALEY of New York has been selected to act as the third man in the ring. Haley is quite unknown here, as he is a former Dover, N. H., boy and won honors in the featherweight division in the college days. He officiated at the Gallant-Cross bout and gave satisfaction. He was named to referee after a lengthy controversy between the managers of the rival glove men.

AN attractive preliminary card has also been arranged. The semi-final bout of eight rounds will be between Charley Beyers of the South End and Walter Butler of Beachmont. There will also be six 4-round preliminaries. Johnny Coes of South Boston will meet Battling Mosfarland of Providence, while Willie Green and Johnny Murphy, both of whom hail from South Boston, will exchange blows.

A LARGE number of entries have been received for the amateur tournament, which will be staged by the Riverside Boat Club tonight. Contests will be held at 105, 115, 125 and 135 pounds. It is the first important amateur tournament which has been arranged by a local club this Fall, and the lovers of the "simon pure" game are on to turn out in force to witness the festivities.

REALIZING that Matty Baldwin has not any desire to meet him, Freddie Welsh of Stanton has turned his attention to Eddie Murphy of South Boston. Eddie Moore, Yelle's manager, declares that he would like to pit his protege against the clever South Boston boxer.

"Yelle would surely beat Murphy," declared Moore today. "When Johnny 'Young' Lustig fought Eddie, he gave him a hard battle and was in good condition when the contest ended. Yelle, on the other hand, easily disposed of the New Yorker."

NEITHER Murphy nor Baldwin were able to shake up Lustig. The latter was the aggressor in both of these battles and in his tussle with Baldwin he shaded the champion. Yelle, however, rocked Lustig with smashing left and right-hand punches. I believe that if Eddie Murphy were in Lustig's place that Yelle would have won by a knockout.

"I realize that Murphy is a fast, clever boxer, but so is Yelle. Freddy is also a hard puncher, and, unlike Murphy, can hit a solid blow with each hand."

Mandot and Saylor Signed to Battle Before Atlas A. A.

The Atlas A. A. arranged another attractive bout when it signed Joe Mandot, the sensational Southern lightweight, to clash with "Young" Saylor of Indianapolis in a twelve-round bout at the Arena a week from tomorrow night.

Matty Baldwin was originally booked to meet Mandot on this date, but he was forced to withdraw from the match on account of trouble with his nose.

Mandot is classed with the worlds leading lightweights, while Saylor has made a fine record within the past few months. He recently returned from Australia, where he swept all before him.

COTTAGE PARK AND COLONIALS ROLL TONIGHT

WHAT should prove to be one of the most exciting as well as one of the most interesting Boston pin matches this season will be rolled at the Cottage Park Yacht Club Alleys tonight between the home team and the Colonial Club.

Cottage Park is one of the two new members of the Amateur Boston Pin League, and since its entry into the organization has made a surprisingly good showing. Although the leading Colonial team has a point margin on the Winthrop five, the latter has produced better pinfall and should set a hot pace for their opponents, especially with the advantage of bowling on its own lanes.

At the same time, the Arlington Boat and City Clubs will meet on the B. A. Alleys. These two teams are tied for fourth place, and with the slit of a good hand tonight either of them will be in a position to climb onto the runner-up rung.

Dudley will have the Winthrop Y. C. for an attraction this evening. Though clinging close to the cellar, Dudley is deserving of much better position, especially when its pinfall is taken into consideration.

THE Mystic Valley League, the last of the big club organizations to get into swing, will open its season tonight, although only two of the teams, Malden and Kernwood, will start the ball a rolling. The real opening is carded for tomorrow evening, when the other six teams begin their season.

* * *

THE first and second divisions of the Corporation League will be fitted against each other at tonight's meeting at the New Boston Alleys. Little change in the standing of the two leaders is looked for, although it is possible that one of the trailers may spring the unexpected.

* * *

WARREN Brown, with an average of 105, has taken upon himself the job of showing the way to the individuals of the City League. Although Rochler bowled one pin over 100 last week, Brown's big total distanced him.

* * *

AS was eventually expected, Hyde Park has been ousted from the leadership of the Greater Boston Y. M. C. A. League, and Salem has taken the lead. Hyde Park, however, has a much better pinfall than any other quintet in the league, is third, but seemed strong.

* * *

WITH three matches rolled, Notre Dame has yet to lose a point in the Copley Square League.

* * *

BOB GILLISPIE is banning the wood shinplaster since he joined the Sons Dance Club team. He holds an average of 103, which is 5 points better than the average of his nearest competitor, Ifflander.

* * *

THE race in the Columbus Chicken A. C. Loop has developed into a rather unsettled affair. Teams 1 and 2 having all the better of the going.

* * *

WITH the possible exception of the General Services and Motor Industries, all the early teams in the Eastern Club League is in the running for first honors. The fives are engaged in a pretty battle for the leadership.

Johansen-Weideman in Mat Bout Here

Ernst Johansen, the crack Norwegian wrestler, who has made such a great hit with Boston fans, will have another opportunity to show his skill on Thursday night, when he tackles Fritz Weideman, the lanky German mat-match to a finish at the Grand Opera House. The style will be catch-as-catch-can, best two out of three falls.

FREDDY WELSH AND WHITE IN BOUT TONIGHT

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 9. — Freddy Welsh, the world's lightweight champion, and Charley White of Chicago will battle in a ten-round bout here tonight. No referee's decisions are permitted here. Consequently Welsh cannot lose his title unless he is knocked out.

The champion rules a 10 to 7 favorite in the betting. Many big wagers have been made. The bets will be decided by the decisions of the prominent sporting writers.

Now that you have read and digested all that was written about that New York battle between Freddie Welsh and Ad Wolgast, have you revised your original opinion of the Welsh-Charlie White battle in Milwaukee Monday night? If you are a white man you will say naturally that you are not worrying, since Charley beat Wolgast not so very long back in Milwaukee.

If you are a Welsh follower you will smile to yourself or to your friend, who may not think as you do, and remark complacently: "Just wait and see what he will do to the White fellow."

The Welsh followers are shaking hands with themselves because, as they outline it, Welsh did more to Wolgast in eight rounds than White was able to do with the Michigan Rarest in ten in Milwaukee. They claim that Welsh really stopped Wolgast, beating him so thoroughly that the subterfuge of a wounded mitt was accepted as the best way out of a mighty trying situation.

They insist that Wolgast, gamest of them all, never quit in his life, and never would, and insist that Welsh really stopped him.

The white people are thoroughly cheerful over the result. If the fight Charley Welsh as he did Wolgast, the title will change hands inside of five rounds, was the confident prediction heard around town more than once today.

Such an event, of course, would give the Chicago boxer a chance to land his tremendous left hook.

Charley likes to be rushed, because then gives him the chance he says he is laying for, the oncoming jaw, the flying elbows and the careless guard.

One thing is certain about this Milwaukee battle. If White ever gets Welsh in the condition he had Willie Ritchie in the first round of that contest last Spring, he'll knock him out sure. It was only the superhuman gameness and stamina of the Californian that saved him that night.

We cannot figure Welsh has either the boxing, the tremendous recuperative powers or the uncanny courage of the man from whom he seized the title in England.

Anti-Kamnia Tablets for All Pain

"The efficiency of any drug," says Dr. C. F. Robbins, "is known to us only by the results we obtain from its use. If we are able to control pain and disease by means of any preparation, we certainly are warranted in its use. One of the principal symptoms of all diseases is pain, and this is what the patient most often applies to us for, as our first thing to relieve his pain. If we can arrest this pain, the first treatment is most liable to trust in us for the other remedies which will effect a permanent cure. The remedy which I have used largely in my practice is Anti-Kamnia Tablets. Many and varied are their uses. I have put them to the test on many occasions and never been disappointed. I found them especially valuable for headache of malarial origin, where quinine had failed. They relieve at once and after effects, such as dullness. Anti-Kamnia Tablets are the right thing for the headaches from indigestion, also for headaches of nervous origin, and especially for women subject to pains at certain times. The Anti-Kamnia Tablets give prompt relief, and in a short time the patient will be able to go about as usual. These tablets may be obtained at all druggists. Ask for A-K Tablets. They are also recommended for headaches, neuralgia and all pains.

Gentlemen:

We are pleased to inform you that Steamship Dubbe arrived from Rotterdam, having on board for you some Choice 1914 Bohemian Hops of the same kind with which we have always supplied you. The shipment will go forward to you tomorrow.

We expect another steamer in in the course of the next few days having on board for you some more of your Choice 1914 Bohemian Hops on order.

Yours very truly,
Carl Meyer & Co.

IN the month of August we announced to the thousands of discriminating beer drinkers whose appreciation of the exceptional qualities of Harvard Beer had been responsible for the tremendous growth of the sale of that product, that we had on hand in our large hop storage vaults enough Choice Bohemian Hops to last us for many months, and that consequently the character of Harvard Beer, so far as imported hops were responsible for its character, would not be disturbed, at least for some time, even if the war interfered with such importations.

We hoped and felt at that time that the terrible conflict that is devastating large sections of Europe would be of short duration. Developments shortly after forced us to the conclusion that the war was to be of much longer duration that was anticipated.

We immediately gave earnest attention to the problem of transporting through the war zone a supply of the 1914 Choice Bohemian Hops that we understood had been harvested, notwithstanding the close proximity of the war operations to the hop fields, and we are glad to be able to announce now that our efforts in this direction have been crowned with success.

Our first consignment of Bohemian Hops has been received, as the letter appearing with this announcement will indicate, and further consignments are on the way.

We have purchased liberally, and it gives us immeasurable satisfaction to be able to announce that our supply of 1914 Choice Bohemian Hops will enable us to continue during the year 1915 and far into the year 1916, even though the war should continue that long, to maintain the policy that we have adhered to in the past of using in the production of Harvard Beer the choicest Bohemian Hops exclusively.

HARVARD'S GREAT VICTORY OVER PRINCETON PLACES CRIMSON IN FRONT RANK

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTING NEWS

MORE GAMES AT CHEAPER PRICES MAY BE THE RULE AT BIG BASEBALL SERIES

HARVARD GOES TO FRONT AS GRIDIRON CHAMPION

By WALTER CAMP.

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Nov. 9.—Another week's shifting of the football stage brings Harvard to the front as an odds on favorite with a vengeance. Last Sunday everyone was wondering whether Harvard's weakness or Michigan's strength was responsible for the close score between the two at Cambridge. That question has been decisively answered by two scores, of Michigan 34, Penn 3, and Harvard 20, Princeton 0.

Again Yale's decisive victory last Saturday over Colgate made it look, in view of their former early games and stunning defeat of the far heralded Notre Dame team, as if the Washington Jefferson game was only a mid-season slump, but only barely locating Brown yesterday after Brown had been snowed under by Cornell puts a question on that assumption.

GREAT BOOST IN HARVARD'S STOCK.

Altogether then Harvard's stock goes decidedly roaring. The Army also goes on looking better and better by adding a defeat of Notre Dame, 29 to 7; while Navy beat Fordham, 21 to 6.

Yale and Princeton both got black eyes Saturday, the former through the partial failure of their lateral passing game, and the latter through the pronounced weakness of their attack.

No team's defence can be expected to last all the time through a game if her back field cannot give the line a respite by occasionally being able to offer a play that will bring the ball for a few rushes in order that the forwards may have a breathing spell and rest just a bit from the nervous tension of guessing the opponents' plays, and this very point brings up to pronounced notice a most striking feature—in fact the most striking feature of the football of 1914.

It is this, the strain on the players when on the defence is overwhelmingly a nervous strain—even formerly a team cracked it was through physical efforts again and again repeated to the point of exhaustion.

PRINCETON CRACKED EARLY.

Now the nervous tension to which the modern defence is subjected in a big game becomes at times almost unbearable, and that is demonstrated by the hitherto almost unknown phenomenon of two teams battling through three periods without score and then one beating the other by double figures.

As stated in our article last week, when a team cracks under the nervous tension their opponent overwhelms them. Princeton started against Harvard with a good line charge on defence, and in fact, was really first in position to be beaten, as Logan, the Harvard quarter, was evidently a bit nervous in handling kicks.

But Princeton proved equally nervous a minute later. Still up to that time Princeton was the master of the Harvard attack get away. Then an end around and later a feint at a pass with a turn and direct drive into the line got on the nerves of Princeton's forwards, who had stood up wonderfully against Dartmouth's simpler running game, and from that point on Princeton was willing to see much nerve force in worrying where the play was coming that they soon had no reserve left.

HARD GAME OF GUESSING PLAYS.

Those who know the team and had seen their earlier good work could not understand what had come over them. Well, to the old timers let me say, "Go out there and play against the possibilities of the modern game and you will begin to see." It is not that the opposing team makes forward passes, but that they may make them.

It is not that they use many fakes or plays based on deception, but the make just enough so that you don't dare do as you did in the old days, charge straight for what you think the play is going to be.

It is certainly a nerve cracking job, and when the opponents have as deceptive an attack as Harvard's, it is no wonder the Princeton team broke down under it and were unable to do themselves justice.

There were some interesting points, the rules developed in the last week. Among them is the question of a substitute coming out and in defence not being able to stop his play on time. Either there are twelve men on the field or the play should be recalled.

TWO BAD PLAYS IN RULES.

It seems perhaps fairest to always recall in play.

Another point and one that will lead to bad blood and trouble if not promptly ruled upon, is knocking down a secondary defensive man after the referee's whistle has blown putting an end to the play.

Often the player thus struck has seen the play stopped and is turning partly away and in an entirely unsuspecting and unprotecting position.

Another point that is being very carelessly ruled is beating the ball on a starting signal, linesmen going into the neutral zone or a backfield man starting too soon.

There seems also to be a certain amount of misunderstanding caused by the rule regarding consecutive downs. I have received numerous letters complaining that it is claimed that this rule admits of the kicker's side getting the ball even though they are offside and the ball has not touched an opponent merely because opponents have had a fair and equal chance to gain possession of it.

CHANGE NEEDED HERE ALSO.

This rule relates only to the continuity of downs and has no bearing outside of that. Still one more is the rule regarding the snapping the ball back out of bounds. The rule says it shall belong to the side first securing it. This, however, does not say that it makes it first down if the side that snapped it back secures it. This would be manifestly unfair and against the rule that says the opponents shall have fair and equal chance of possession.

This should be covered conclusively. The rules next year should be made to avoid any possibility of misconstruction and should be made a point of agreement between teams for the final big games of this year.

HERE'S A BIT OF GOOD NEWS FOR BALL FANS

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 9.—Nine games instead of seven to decide the world's championship, and lower prices to the games, has been decided upon by the American League.

The plan will be presented to the National League magnates at their annual meeting in New York next month for action, and it is almost certain it will meet with the same unanimous support that was given by the American League in Chicago.

The change in the arrangements for the World's Series and a reduction in the number of players to be carried by the clubs next season, were the principal matters discussed by the American League club owners at the Chicago meeting, which lasted two days.

The World's Series changes took up considerable time. One or two of the magnates were in favor of lengthening the series to eleven games, but it was thought that this would be too long; that the strain on the players would be too great to permit them showing their best form in so many games, and that the interest of the public would wane.

Nine games, the winner to be the club taking the first five, and the players to share in the first five instead of four, as is now the case, was the popular plan which met with unanimous support.

Connie Mack, manager of the Athletics, who have figured in five world's championship series, is heartily in favor of it, and he is backed strongly by the magnates, who have come to realize that there must be some sort of change.

President Johnson placed the matter before the club owners as the best means of satisfying the public and to eliminate the complaints and ill feeling that occurs every year.

GHEE MAY LAND POSITION ON ALL-AMERICAN ELEVEN

It's rather early in the football season to begin the selection of the All-American footballers, but, just the same, some young persons half living from the different institutions of learning already have performed in such style that they may be regarded as among the truly great, in a football way.

Ghee, the Dartmouth quarterback, is considerably among those present this year. Ghee, last year, was generally selected as the All-Eastern quarterback because of his fine work, but had to step aside when the All-American selections were made and surrender the honor to Logan, the great general of the 1913 Notre Dame team.

Up to the present time, Ghee seems to stand head and shoulders above the other star quarterbacks. It is possible that in the big games to be played this month some of the other quarterbacks will perform in style that will eclipse Ghee, but anyone who expects to overshadow Ghee's work must do some hurrying.

MINNESOTA FULLBACK BIDS.

Solon, the Minnesota fullback, is tearing up the opposition lines in a surprising fashion this year. He was good last year, but this year his work is brilliant. On the defensive, Solon is a tower of strength, and, if he keeps up his early work he will demand considerable attention when the All-American jobs are passed out.

Talbott of Yale, who was Walter Camp's selection for one of the All-American tackles, is playing far beyond his work of last year, and, unless he "cracks" during the big games he is practically certain of being the unanimous choice as one of the All-American tackles.

Le Gore, a Yale sophomore, has been doing some wonderful work for Yale in the fullback position. He hasn't been tested in the big games as yet, but his showing in the early games forces the football experts to give him great consideration at this time. Le Gore is a game cleat through. He's a fine line smasher, an adept at the open style game, and a great man on the defensive. Everywhere he has been regarded as one of the season's finds.

SPLAWN CERTAIN OF PLACE.

Splawn and Maulbetsch, the great Michigan backfield men, seem pretty certain of landing jobs on the All-Western eleven, and it they continue their past form, may make a strong bid for places on the All-American. Both are fine booters, both are fast, and both can hit a line almost with the Heston power of old. Almost—but not quite.

Hughitt, the quarterback star of Michigan, seemed certain of the honor of being the All-Western quarterback until injuries forced him out of the game. Hughitt's future work may not be affected by his injuries—and it may. If it is, it probably will kill Hughitt's chances for the All-Western honor.

Knowles and Ainsworth of Yale, have been doing some fine backfield work. They have the forward pass down to a fine point. Both men are circling the ends this year in a way that brought big gains for Yale and both are ready.

SOUCY SHOWS POORLY.

Soucy of Harvard, the All-Eastern centre last year, won't grab the honor this year unless he makes a surprising improvement. His work at that position has been a disappointment. Wray of Yale has been rushing along at a great clip, and he surely will be in position to make a strong bid for the big honors if he maintains his past clip in the Princeton and Harvard games.

The University of Pittsburgh eleven, which already has beaten some of the best and biggest teams in the East, will put forth a number of candidates for the high honors. Bailey of Princeton, one of Camp's All-American tackles last year, is performing in fine style this year. He seems like a strong candidate for the All-Eastern honors and may make the All-American again.

Eichenlaub of Notre Dame was a big figure in the fight for the All-Western fullback job until the Yale game. The big fullback failed to live up to predictions in that game and his stock slumped.

The University of Chicago has two fine backfield men and two great linesmen that deserve much consideration when the All-Western honors are doled out. Des Jardien, Chicago centre, who was the almost unanimous All-American selection last year, is performing in great fashion this year and undoubtedly will draw the double honor of being selected as the All-Western and All-American centre for 1914.

Hinkey, the great Harvard fullback, probably would have been the unanimous All-American fullback had he remained in the game throughout the season. But the fact that he will be out for all the big games seems to kill his chances for landing the honor.

Of course, no definite selections of the all-star teams can be made at this time. The big games still are to be played. It is the big games that furnish the real tests. Some players work up to their best during the preliminary games—when pitted against lighter teams. But in the big games, as a rule, the best showing in the big games, more than in their showing in the small games, that the selection must be made.

Yale to Practice in New Stadium for Harvard Game

Yale's football squad from now on will practice in the area within the big Yale bowl in order to get accustomed to the air currents and other caprices which may be confusing about within the big structure.

The condition of the turf in the bowl partially prevented the contest with Brown being played there last Saturday and was thought that it would be a better business proposition to open the bowl with the annual classic with Harvard. The Harvard team, which expects to dish Captain Talbot's crimson in their own back yard, will arrive at New Haven on Thursday at least week, practicing on the new grounds.

They will remain over Sunday and Friday in New London, where the squad will have a light signal practice on the New London baseball grounds.

FOOTBALL MEN FAVOR EAST VS. WEST BATTLE

By "AL"

The proposition of President James of the University of Illinois to have the football champions of the West meet the gridiron leaders of the East in a game at the new Yale bowl the Saturday after Thanksgiving, has set the college world and the world of sports by the ears.

The proposition looks like a mighty good one from all angles.

PROPOSED GAME MAKES GREAT HIT.

The object being characteristic of the Illinois relief fund idea, there can be no objections whatever on the part of those who object to the commercial aspect the big college game has assumed of late years.

The opportunity to have a real sectional battle, between the two undisputed champions of the great sectional divisions of the country makes the scheme the most attractive ever spread to football fandom.

The time, there's only three weeks is rather short, but if the Eastern and Western elevens can be worked up with the same enthusiasm that the Westerners evidently have for the proposed game, there is no doubt that all necessary details could be handled to the complete satisfaction of all concerned.

A SINGLE OBJECTION.

The sole objection that can be raised will, of course, have to do with the matter of training, the players of which ever team wins in the Harvard-Yale game over Thanksgiving day will have completed their training and will be through the fall with the one objective—the big football game of Red and Blue. The players doubtless have made arrangements for vacations and other plans to celebrate the completion of training which follows the big battle of the year.

But it is highly probable no one who the college athletes would not be kept in condition for an extra game, the matter of previous plans could easily be fixed, and there's not the slightest likelihood that any one of the players would offer an objection.

It is possible for the Western team to keep in shape, and the fact that all are enthusiastic for the game, and that it would be played on neutral ground, makes it quite possible for the Easterners. So far as we have been able to obtain an opinion, the players are willing to ask nothing from his Western brother in the matter of strength and health.

WOULD NET BIG SUM.

And what may appeal to the coaches, the team that was beaten would have a big financial boost as well. So far as the money the game would net goes, it's certain that the estimate of $100,000 made by the promoters of the plan is not high. But even if it is, a split of half that sum could be easily realized.

The game as a drawing card would be a big one in both sections of the country, as the Harvard-Yale battle, while it's a safety that thousands will go from the East through the West to see it, is none the less there is some talk here and there of having an all-star Eastern team meet an all-star Western aggregation. But whether such a game would attract as much interest is extremely doubtful. In the first place, there would be too little at stake, and the fact that one college had the iron of its opponents in the fire would lessen interest.

As those who claim that it would be unfair for coach of the champions of the year to coach against an extra week, are inclined to favor the all-star game, on the ground that it would be more evenly matched, as the stars are going to start in shape for the battle, while the champions are not at all?

NO TIME FOR DELAY.

Certain it is that the matter will have to be settled definitely to short order because if a game is to be played—and not a football lover in the country but wants the world-beater enormous fame of the ticket disposal would be a matter of delay.

Getting down to the Eastern football situation, the manner in which Harvard's team has come to the front as the Crimson's most favorite when the chances of championship is being discussed.

The Yale team as in and out aggregation if we have seen right, was equally liked with the Crimson up to Saturday, but from then on, even against the week Brown eleven has raised the pendulum of popular opinion to favor Harvard.

A Defeat!

All the energy expended in pushing cheap liquors at cheap prices has come to naught. And "Snow quality" in pure and mellow old whiskies of age is again placed an important part in the rout.

The Defeat Is Decisive!

Exeter Confident of Andover Win

EXETER, N. H., Nov. 9.—Ringing cheers and snake dances for the victory over Worcester were signals for the opening of the week of enthusiasm for the Andover game Saturday, and this week will be devoted to the polishing off of the eleven to meet Andover upon the State line in the annual school event.

There is every kind of confidence that Exeter will emerge victor at Andover, and for the final game there will be hard scrimmages early in the week, behind closed gates, but later the gates are to be opened and the students will march to the field and cheer the eleven in action.

Report Clarke Signed Again by Pirates

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 9.—There is a deep-rooted suspicion that Manager Fred Clarke of the Pirates has already signed a contract for 1915 and that the announcement will be delayed until after the minor leagues' meeting in Omaha next week.

President Dreyfuss has arranged to meet Clarke in the Nebraska city, and it may be that other important business will be transacted by them there. Fred, just previous to the close of last season, indicated that he would not be content to leave the game until he had landed another winner.

Harvard and Cornell Soccer Game Today

Harvard's soccer team plays Cornell today at Ithaca in the second game of the intercollegiate series.

In the opening game of the series Harvard tied with Princeton, 1 to 2, and Cornell, in its opener, lost to the Jungleers, 2 to 1.

The line-up of the two teams follows:

Perdue to Figure in St. Louis Trade

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 9.—Hub Perdue, the former Brave who was secured by the Cardinals last Summer in exchange for Whitted and Cather, is to be the instrument of a trade by the St. Louis club during the meeting of the minor leagues at Omaha this week.

Kenneth Nash, the utility infielder, and Leo Dressen, the recruit first baseman, are also mentioned for a trade deal. Huggins hopes to use one of these men in getting Max Carey of Pittsburgh, asserting that he understood Manager Fred Clarke of the Pirates intended shaking up his club from stem to stern, with only three of the members of the Pittsburgh club sure to remain another year.

Big Penn Shakeup to Stave Off Defeat

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 9.—Four of the Pennsylvania eleven are badly hurt and Clem Urquhart and Fred Vreeland may be out of the game for the rest of the season.

There will be a big change in Pennsylvania backfield. It is reported that Harry Myrdock will replace Ted Merrell, and that Lemberg, the scrub, will be given Tuckerman's position with the varsity and a lineman played at halfback. Charles Statwalu will also be used at halfback.

The coaches held a meeting and decided that the only thing to save Pennsylvania from defeats at the hands of Dartmouth and Cornell would be a big shake-up.

All Americans Win Two Games

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 9.—By winning both games of a double-header, 1 to 0 and 9 to 2, the All-Americans evened up matters with the All-Nationals, each team now having won 10 games since starting on the tour.

Brown Gets Busy for Harvard Game

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 9.—Except for a few bruises, the Brown football team came through the Yale game without injury, and that, in spite of the fact that it was the roughest game with the Blue that Brown has played.

The work of the coaches this week will all be directed toward the Harvard contest next Saturday. Brown expects a harder fight at Cambridge than it encountered at New Haven, but the coaches feel that if the team continues to progress during the coming week by the same ratio that it did the week preceding the Yale game, it will give Harvard a battle worth while.

Harvard Praised by Eli Football Experts

NEW HAVEN Nov. 9.—The delegation of Yale players and coaches who saw the Harvard-Princeton game Saturday returned to New Haven with the highest respect for the Crimson's ability.

Coach Hinkey plans to work the squad at top speed this week in preparation for the game at Princeton next Saturday.

Most of the attention will be devoted to the line, which has fallen short of expectations.

Their Married Life

It Costs Helen $2.65 to Get from the Raymonds to Her Own Home.

Copyright, 1914, International News Service.

"I WISH you could stay down to dinner, but you said you were dining out, didn't you, dear? Well, we'll hope for better luck next time." And Mrs. Raymond looked at Helen admiringly as they rose from the table and walked out into the lobby.

Helen wondered nervously how she was to get away. Mrs. Raymond kept up a steady stream of conversation continually and Mr. Raymond said little or nothing, while Helen had nothing to do but agree. The situation was almost funny at times, but Helen was annoyed and uncomfortable. It was almost impossible for her to be tactful when she disliked a person as much as she did Mrs. Raymond and to be called upon to cater to her was almost more than she could bear.

"Now, if you are in such a hurry, dear, Mr. Raymond will call a taxi and send you home." Helen was about to say that she didn't want a taxi, but Mr. Raymond was off before she could open her mouth. She knew that it was rank extravagance to take a taxi home. Why, the bill would be atrocious, but how could she stop it now without making a fuss before the Reynolds. She simply could not do it.

"Good-by, dear," went on Mrs. Raymond as they stopped just inside the door. "I'll call you up in the morning, and we can make arrangements for a dinner date. It's been so nice to have you down!"

Mr. Raymond stood on the curb waiting to see her in, and a second later Helen was on her way home. She watched the taximeter go up, up, up, and mentally calculated her bill all the way home. Of course, it was possible for her to get out and go home the rest of the way by car, but it was late, and she hated to change the direction. Helen was the kind of a woman who would put up with anything rather than make a fuss, and she determined to get home just as fast as she could, even if her bill amounted to five dollars.

The streets were already ablaze with light and alive with traffic, and the taxi was oblized to stop and wait at almost every crossing, but at they got further out they made time and almost before she knew it, the man had stopped at her own apartment, and she was getting out.

THE RIDE COST HER CLOSE TO THREE DOLLARS.

"Two dollars and sixty-five cents, madam," said the driver, not waiting for her to ask the amount, and Helen paid the bill without a murmur. After all it hadn't been so bad, and she had at least driven home just twice as fast as she would have in the crowded cars. Her spirits began to rise as she went up in the elevator and when she rang the bell and Mary let her in with a smiling face and told her that Mr. Allen had just come home yet, Helen drew a sigh of relief.

After an uncomfortable afternoon things were at last coming her way. She and Warren had promised to dine with Mr. and Mrs. Stevens and as the dinner was a formal one, that Mrs. Stevens was giving for her younger sister, there was, of course, the necessity of dressing.

Helen hurried into her own room and took off her hat and coat. The little clock on the dressing table noticed to five minutes to six. Warren was late, but for once she was heartily glad of it. She hurried to the cedar chest in the corner and hastily pulled out the large box that contained Warren's dress suit. The suit had been sent up from the tailor's a couple of days ago and Helen had not bothered to open it. Now she hastily undid the strings and lifted it out.

Warren was always so cross if she did not have everything ready for him. It took her nearly ten minutes to get the cuff links properly fixed in his cuffs and all the rest of the swings there were to it, and then she began to dress herself. She was in a light kimono, standing over to adjust her slippers when the telephone rang. Nora went to answer it, and, much to Helen's surprise, it was not Warren as she expected, but some one for Nora. A moment later she was fitted into the door, and Warren came in. Nora passed him with a blushing face as he came down the little hall, and Helen smiled involuntarily at his cheery "Good evening, Nora," when she looked as he came in. How nice things were going to be, she could almost tell by the way Warren smiled.

"You're late, dear," as he stooped to kiss her; "never mind, I have everything ready for you to jump right in, and there is really plenty of time."

"All right; I'll be ready for you in no time. What have you been doing all day"

Helen made a wry face at him in the glass. Helen was always at her best when she was arranging her hair, and she could not help knowing that Warren was looking at her admiringly.

"Dear, you'll never guess. Not if I gave you three hundred guesses instead of three."

"Had as that, eh "

"Yes; bad as that and worse. I've been having tea down at the Blank with the Raymonds."

Helen waited dramatically for the surprise that was sure to come. But Warren wrinkled up his forehead as though he were trying to remember and couldn't.

WARREN WANTS TO BE COUNTED OUT OF IT

"The Raymonds? Oh, yes, I know; shades of the seashore. You don't mean to tell me they're here in the city?"

"Worse than that, dear; they roped me into a tea date, and it was just luck that we didn't have to accept a dinner engagement for tonight. I'm afraid we'll have to dine with them and have them up here. I wish you could hear Mrs. Raymond talk about seeing my apartment. She is sure it must be perfect."

Warren laughed. "Well, you can count me out of it. I've got to run over to Baltimore tomorrow on business. That's why I was at the office so late."

Helen turned around suddenly.

"Really, dear; well what am I going to do about it then? Do you think it will be necessary to have them any way?"

"Why, yes; I'd have them up to lunch if I were you, but anyway you won't have to make another date to go out with them."

"No; I'll just tell them that you have been called out of town on business and I can have them up to lunch on Friday. What a relief."

Warren had finished changing his shoes and was shaking out his dress suit, which had been lying on the bed, just as Helen took it from the box. Helen was just about to ask him how long he would be away when she was startled by an exclamation from the other side of the room.

"What the deuce is the matter with these trousers?" Warren growled, looking over at them as though for explanation.

"Why, dear, I don't know; I just took them out of the box a few moments ago. I don't know any more about it than you do."

"Well, look at them, my trousers don't look like that; never did. Those idiots have sent me up the wrong suit."

"Are you sure, dear?" Helen ventured timidly, almost afraid to say anything for fear of making matters worse.

"Sure, of course I'm sure. Look at these trousers, look at this coat. If you'd ever seen me change my own things when they come from the tailor's you might know whether the suit was mine or not."

"It's strange that the tailor hasn't discovered it before this. Shall I call him up."

"No, he isn't open nights. I'll see if I can locate him. If I can't, you'll have to go on without me."

Helen sat quietly by wholesale while Warren got into the suit. It seemed to fit all right and was quite as nicely made as Warren's own. In her estimation.

"Do you think it will do, dear?"

Warren was adjusting his tie and did not answer at once, but as it finally slipped into place where he gave a last tug to his collar and turned around grudingly.

"I guess it will do all right but just the same if you had taken it out of the box you would have discovered the mistake two days ago. That's the trouble with you women who have nothing to do but think about yourselves; you all get too selfish. Hurry up now, or we'll be late."

(Another instalment in this fascinating story of everyday life will appear on this page.)

Civilizing Cherry

Her Debut as a Dancer

By STELLA FLORES

Copyright, 1914, by International News Service.

THE little unknown dancer was famous. Cherry had made her first appearance the night before. A few clever touches of grease paint and a filmy veil floating before her face entirely concealed her identity. She had seen Ned leun forward from a box to catch one of the flowers she tossed to the audience. And he was wearing it tonight!

"You'd better take Cherry to hear the new violinist tonight," suggested Aunt Rose to him teasingly. Before Cherry could offer an excuse Ned flushed and said, "I'm sorry, but I've an engagement." Aunt Rose's eyes were as mischievous as she answered: "Yes, I know, young man. I heard you telephoning to the theatre, where that new dancer has made such a sensation, and you went last night." Cherry made her escape, but her head was in a whirl.

Of course it couldn't be true that she had won his admiration! Cherry told herself this severely over and over again as she recalled the numberless rich and pretty girls who welcomed his company. "It can't be true," she repeated as she stepped before the footlights. But her eyes quickly sought the box where he had sat. And he was there again. A thrill of triumph that was not exactly happiness ran through her—and then a little chill of disappointment.

After all, it could only be the lights, the music and flowers that attracted him. For he had paid small heed to her at home, where all the other men had been so attentive. Still the world was very beautiful, and he was there, wearing her flower! She did not know that his keen eyes had recognized her instantly, and that he was there to watch and guard her from harm.

STELLA FLORES

The Whirling Sun

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

"IS it a proved fact that the sun revolves on its axis?

"Is the sun with all its planets moving through space, and if so, in what apparent direction?"

Yes, it is a proved fact that the sun revolves on its axis, but all parts of its surface do not rotate with the same velocity. In this respect the rotation of the sun differs from that of the earth.

The earth, being covered with a solid crust, and being also, as recent investigation demonstrates, as rigid as steel throughout its entire globe, rotates with one and the same angular velocity from the equator to the poles.

If you stood on the earth's equator you would be carried by its daily rotation round a circle about 25,000 miles in circumference. If you stood within a yard of the North or South Pole you would be carried, by the same motion, round a circle not quite nineteen feet in circumference. And yet it would require precisely the same time, viz., twenty-four hours, to describe the nineteen-foot circle as the 25,000-mile circle.

That is what we mean by saying that the earth's angular velocity of rotation is everywhere the same.

But the absolute velocity in space of a point on the equator is not the same as that of a point near the pole. The first amounts to about 1,040 miles per minute, and the other, in the case above given, to less than one-sixth of an inch in a minute.

Now the sun requires as many days to make a rotation on its axis as the earth requires hours. But the angular speed decreases from its equator toward its poles. Thus a point on the solar equator goes round in about 24.6 days; one in latitude 4orth or south 30 degrees, takes 26.3 days; one in latitude 60 degrees, 31.2 days, and one within ten degrees of either pole 35.3 days. But although the sun's rotation takes days while the earth's is measured by hours, yet his size is so enormous, his equatorial belt being about 2,722,000 miles round, that the speed of a point near his equator is four and one-half times as great as that of a similar point on the earth.

The inequality of the angular velocity of the sun's rotation at different distances from his equator is in itself a proof that he cannot have a solid crust like the earth's, and we know from other evidence that the sun is composed of hot gases and vapors, among which vaporized metals such as iron occupy an important place.

Yes, the sun with all its planets is moving through space, and the direction of this motion is approximately known. It is toward the northern part of the sky, and not far from an imaginary line drawn to the brilliant star Vega in the constellation of Lyra.

That star is a sun probably a thousand times greater than ours, but it is not to the attraction of Vega that astronomers ascribe the sun's motion. The real cause of that motion remains unascertained, although it is probably due to the combined effects of the attraction of all the stars as well as of the invisible bodies in space.

Every star in the sky is likewise in motion, but they all vary both in their speed and the directions in which they are flying. However, recent studies have shown that two great general currents of star motion exist, and these currents appear to be flowing in diametrically opposite directions, although the stars belonging to both currents seem to be intermingled as viewed from the earth. Here is a great mystery.

Also it has been discovered that certain groups of stars are moving together like swarms of bees, some going one way and some another. Stars scattered in widely separated parts of the sky are fellow-voyagers with our sun, although they are millions of millions of miles away from him. What may be the link that joins them is another puzzling enigma.

The Six of Hearts

A mountaineer went to town, and among other things he bought a bottle of whiskey. Not wanting to carry it about with him, he decided to leave it at a grocery store for a while.

In order that the bottle might be properly identified, he took a pack of cards from his pocket, extracted the six of hearts, wrote his name upon it, and attached it to the bottle.

Two hours later the mountaineer returned. The bottle was gone!

"Look here, Jim," he cried to the proprietor of the store, "do you know what has become of that bottle of mine?"

"Sure," rejoined the proprietor "Jake Harwell came along with the six of hearts and took it."

The Girl Who Trusted

A FICTIONLESS FABLE FOR THE FAIR

By ANN LISLE

THERE was once a girl who trusted every one and every one took advantage of her and deceived her. Her relatives smiled and remarked: "Oh, she likes to sit at home and do the work while her sisters go to the balls and her brothers attend college. Society and education would bore her, she's naturally domestic."

Her parents declared: "She enjoys contriving her costumes out of hand-me-downs! She is just naturally self-effacing, and she gets more fun out of seeing the other children have things than she would out of getting them herself."

Her lovers said: "She understands the romance and lure a fellow feels pursuing an affair with a girl, as if she doesn't mind our deserting her after the newness has worn off our friendship."

And the girl met life smiling and took her disappointments cheerfully. "For," said she, "these will make me a strong, fine woman, able to appreciate true friendship and true love when I find them. For, of course, there are plenty of loyal, appreciative, understanding souls in the world, so I'll keep faith with life until I find one."

And then the Right Prince came her way and she was very happy, and she said to herself: "Here is my reward!"

And every day the Right Prince gave new proof of how he admired her strength and was glad and proud to be the lover of so splendid a woman.

Then at last on the eve of their wedding, the Right Prince came to the girl and said: "Dear Woman, you are the truest and finest and most ideal. But your little sister Merry is so pretty and she is young and helpless like a child, and of course I can't let her heart break. You are so strong and fine that you can bear the loss of love. Merry couldn't. So of course I must marry her to-morrow. And I'm sure you'll be happy in her happiness."

Which teaches us that some of the strong deserve more fair treatment.

CRITICAL MOMENTS.

What the War Teaches.

Every life has its critical moments. There is one time, of course, in a man's health is staked upon the care he gives to it within a few hours. His system may be run down, blood laden with biliousness poison and lungs or skin affected.

Twenty-four hours after you start to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, poisonous matter and blood impurities begin to leave your body through the Liver, Bowels, Kidneys, and Skin.

So powerfully penetrating is this purely vegetable remedy that through the circulation of the blood it reaches every fibre, muscle and joint, dissolves the poisonous secretions and drives them out of the body.

It brings new activity to the liver, stomach and bowels in a short time, thus causing sallowness, indigestion and constipation to disappear.

It enriches the tiny blood vessels of the skin, bringing with it fresh vitalized blood, and adding faith in its wonderful cleansing power has come to thousands, when pimples, boils, carbuncles, rash, eczema and every other skin troubles dry up and disappear.

Good blood means good health; good health means strong men and women, full of vigor and ambition, with nimble alert muscles ever willing. Any druggist dealer will supply you with Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in either liquid or tablet form. Remember it is purely vegetable, and free from alcohol or narcotics, and is not a secret remedy, for all its ingredients are published on wrapper.

Her Husband's Widow

A Thrilling Story of Romance, Adventure and Intrigue, in Which a Beautiful Young Bride Plays the Part of the Heroine

CHAPTER XVIII.—(Continued)

SINCE the woman had failed him for the moment Sir Ralph decided that it would be worth while to follow the new trail a little further. He would see his consul and perhaps extract some information about Leslie's past.

As he walked toward the British Palace he asked himself whether the last desperate extremity it might not be worth while appealing to Lady Hilda.

"Hullo!" Oswald greeted him cordially. "You are in time for some tea, if you ever drink anything so mild. Sit down."

He told Ralph he would be glad to have some tea and added something about not being so young as he used to be. Oswald looked at him in amused surprise.

"That's a new note, isn't it? I always feel an old stager when I'm in your company, Sir Ralph," he remarked, as the waiter withdrew, "you have just missed your charmer."

"Whom do you mean, Oswald?"

"Mrs. Melas. I thought you were quite struck on her. She is staying here."

"The deuce she is! When did she arrive?"

THE WIDOW GOES OUT WITH CAPTAIN STEELE

"She came by the night train. She was surprised to find me here. She asked at once if I had seen anything of Steele, and when I told her he was in Paris she looked quite relieved. I called sardonically. She telephoned to Steele to come to lunch. And they've gone out driving together. Said something about dining at Armenonville."

Sir Ralph's fulvation was better controlled than usual when his emotions, but his expression of dissatisfaction did not escape Varney, who looked that it was enough to turn the milk sour.

He rejoined his cup on the table with considerable violence.

"He's after her money," he remarked viciously.

Oswald leaned back in his chair and surveyed his companion with amusement.

"Do you know," he said, "that I almost suspected you of a like design?"

"I want to marry her, if that's what you mean."

"I thought so. Well, if Steele has entered for the same stakes I shall scratch."

He rejoined to Jenny's hotel at 11 o'clock in the morning for the next hour in the vestibule. At last he heard through the door bell open by Mary, and then the high soprano voice. She was exclaiming farewells with her companion.

"Come as early as you can tomorrow. And don't say another day's shopping."

Then she entered, gowned like a princess, and with the happy flush on a little cream. Her eyes darted rays of excitement or pleasure, he wondered which.

"Oh, you good old thing," she exclaimed, seeing him. "Have you come to see me on Varney?"

"You, of course." He eyed her keenly. "I've had a wash for your sake, and I often been mistaken for deep devotion."

Mrs. Melas lowered her eyes. "That's very dear of you. Please sit down."

The hansom moved round. The brilliantly lighted hall thronged with people, and the strains of a waltz from the ballroom above. Jenny's face was

FIVE CONCERTS IN BOSTON FOR MUSIC LOVERS

No less than five concerts took place in Boston yesterday, the largest number in the musical history of the city.

In Symphony Hall the big operatic concert under the management of L. K. Mudgett occurred during the afternoon, with Olive Fremstad and Pasquale Amato as soloists. In the evening Mischa Elman, the Irish tenor, passed the big hall.

In the Boston Theatre during the afternoon the second concert in aid of the Boston Music School Settlement was given by Arrigo Serato, the new Italian violinist, and at night a concert was given by the Boston Theatre Opera Company.

In the Wilbur Theatre last evening, Jessica Waters Stone and Reinaldo Berrand and violin solos gave a miscellaneous concert under the direction of Wilhelmina Hall.

Such a plenteous of music is too much for a Boston Sunday and some of the concerts will be largely attended.

Olive Fremstad and Amato gave a wonderful recital at Symphony Hall. Fremstad was in better voice than at any time and with splendid control long and varied program with great beauty of tone and fine phrasing.

Pasquale Amato has the rival to that among baritones except Titto Ruffo. His voice is rich and full and mellow. In the big arias from "The Masked Ball" and "Rigoletto" he was particularly effective in his groups of songs.

The Marcella music cannot add a great financial success and the charity for which it was given benefited largely. It was also very agreeable because the voice was good and the ballads as no other tenor of his type can do.

MOTOR NOTES

By J. C. KERRISON.

James H. Hyslop, well known as an amateur sportsman, has accepted the presidency of the Speedway Country Club of Detroit.

* * *

The Speedway Country Club will construct a speedway of two and one-half miles in conference, within a few miles of Detroit's centre and located along the waterfront. The speedway will be built 100 feet in width, will have retaining walls outside of the course and will be safeguarded in every way. Seating capacity will be provided for 300,000 people and two-thirds of the seats will be removable so that they may be transported to other points. The Masked Ball of Wednesday night, the waterfront for aquatic sports, including motor boat racing.

* * *

The date of the international Grand Prix automobile race at San Francisco has been changed from March 6 to Saturday, February 27. This will be the last of the solid gold cup of the Automobile Club of America and a fortune in cash prizes will be run over the same course as the Vanderbilt cup race, inside the Panama-Pacific exposition grounds. The Vanderbilt will be staged on Washington's birthday, February 22.

* * *

The fact that the two big contests are to be run in the exposition when hundreds of thousands of visitors are in San Francisco, means that the attendance at these races will doubtless break all records, eclipsing the enormous attendance in the old days when the classic Vanderbilt cup race was held on Long Island.

* * *

A message from Billy Carlson, driver of one of the Maxwell racing cars the past season, tells of a remarkable run which he has just finished, from Los Angeles to Phoenix, Arizona.

* * *

Carlson made the trip in a 1915 stock Maxwell touring car. The distance was 215 miles and the car made the trip in thirty hours, including several stops along the route.

* * *

The Maxwell was "tuned up" to the minute before the trip was started, but owing to the length of the journey many adjustments were prophesied.

LATEST THEORY OF TWO EXPERTS

Nervous Debility of the Brain Is the Commonest Ailment of Today.

"It is extremely important that great care should be taken to prevent increased activity of the brain and ensure the right proportion between work and rest," Drs. Rehmann and Seiler, the well-known German authorities on up-to-date hygiene and health, state that nervous debility of the brain is the commonest ailment of our day. They attribute the principal cause to over-exertion, violent emotions, troubles, passion, abuse of the stomach, shocks and the modern mode of living.

"It is conceded that the symptoms of this trouble are very general, owing to the fact that the nervous system completely controls every organ, muscle and cell in the human body.

"Tona Vita, the new tonic now being introduced in Boston, will do more to relieve this ailment, beside of long rest with careful attention to hours and diet.

"Some of the more general symptoms of nervous debility are: Constant headaches, sleep that is broken and restless, constant sense of depression, pains in the back, loss of appetite and weight, or a general run-down feeling.

"If you're one of the sufferers—a trial to yourself or others—quit worrying. Quit envying others their splendid physique and hearty appetites. Invest in a bottle of Tona Vita, feel stronger and have a better appetite."

Tona Vita is on sale at all up-to-date drug store in Boston.

OPERA STARTS ONCE MORE AT THE BOSTON

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

With undaunted confidence the opera company at the Boston Theatre is again appealing for the patronage of the Boston public, this time we hope with a better chance for good results than before.

In recommending the Boston Theatre opera to the readers of the AMERICAN who love music, this newspaper does so because it believes in good music for the people, and because this company has displayed a talent for giving good opera at low prices.

In this world there are only a few pleasures at best, and appreciation of music is one of these. There are lovers of music who prefer it to food or drink, and an excess of music would surely not be so injurious as an excess of eating or drinking.

Good music, especially good vocal music, has always been tremendously expensive. The opera at the Boston Opera House, for example, was very fine, but it cost more than the average working man or woman could afford.

The Boston Theatre people have found a way to present the same singers at low prices, but the glamor and fascination of celebrated stars they did not have, and the public remained away during the four weeks that the experiment has continued.

This is partly due to the fact that the American public has been educated to think that only a limited number of artists can properly sing the grand operas, singers like Caruso, Geraldine Farrar and Emma Destinn, whose fame is international. In truth, there are many other singers whose good fortune has not been so great as these celebrated stars but who sing equally or nearly as well, and some of these are right here in Boston waiting for persons of taste and discrimination to discover them.

This newspaper has the greatest admiration for men who turn their backs on commercial interest and spend their time and their money in enterprises like the performance of good music.

Henry L. Higginson, who, for thirty-three years, has sponsored the Boston Symphony Orchestra until it has become Boston's artistic glory, is one of the greatest benefactors of his native city.

Eben Jordan, who courageously faced deficits year after year to give Boston splendid opera until the war made continuance impossible, deserves the highest praise for his public spirit.

Such institutions as the Music School Settlement, which is offering fine musicians in concert at very low prices to the people, are entitled to the heartiest support.

The courage of the management of the Boston Theatre Opera Company in the face of disaster is also worthy of success.

OPTIMISTICS.

It is understood the Russian government has opened a special credit with an international banking firm in New York to pay for purchases of American products.

The great Yonkers plant of the Alexander Smith & Sons Carpet Company, employing 7,000 hands and having a weekly pay-roll of $35,0009, is now running full time, after operating on half time for about two months.

Many steel mills, blast furnaces and manufacturing plants in the Pittsburgh district are preparing to resume operations in full or in part, and there is more confidence in steel circles.

An order for 50,000 tons of hay is pending in Chicago.

Governors of the New York Consolidated Exchange have voted for trading in GRAIN & PROVISIONS beginning on November 15.

The Naumkeag Cotton Company has planned to build a spinning mill on Congress street, Salem, of concrete and brick, and will be four stories high, 222 feet long and 126 feet wide.

The Laconia Car Company is now filling orders for fifty double-truck cars for the Rhode Island Company, and forty-three rewire-section trailers for Boston Elevated articulated, or "train" cars.

More than 1,000 horses were shipped from Chicago for Europe last week.

Shoe manufacturers believe that by Spring more enormous orders for army shoes will be placed in this country.

BOSTON AMERICAN
80 AND 82 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, NOV. 9, 1914.

A Letter from Mr. Hearst

TO THE EDITOR OF THE BOSTON AMERICAN:

The editorial in the Boston AMERICAN of Saturday on "Government Ownership of the Railroads" contains many powerful points which all thinking men must approve.

It contains some general statements, however, in regard to railroad securities which I do not think are justifiable.

I beg to submit that the effect of our argument in favor of a rightful principle is weakened rather than strengthened by the intrusion of any statement which is not wholly sustained by the facts.

I most earnestly and enthusiastically support the policy of public ownership of public utilities which you so forcefully advocate. I have supported that policy for nearly thirty years, and I am encouraged to think that it is now on the point of general acceptance.

I most heartily approve, too, of your opposition to a further increase of railroad rates.

It seems to me that the government has no moral right in these depressed times further to tax the transportation of the country and to lay added burdens upon the business of the country in order to relieve a single industry of a situation which is in part due to the general depression and in part due to the extravagance and mismanagement of many of the railroads.

I do not think, however, that railroad securities, as a rule, merit the reflection which you have cast upon them.

On the contrary, it seems to me that the stocks and bonds of well-managed American railroads are, in the main, among the best securities in the world, and there has never been better evidence of their excellence than at the present time, when foreign securities ordinarily accepted as sound are shown to be subject to disastrous conditions from which this country is fortunately free.

American railroad securities, moreover, have, as a rule, not only a dollar of property for every dollar they represent, but have generally a generous margin above the amount of issue.

There are several horrible examples of railroad overcapitalization, and of the criminal wrecking of railroad properties, resulting in the swindling of stockholders.

But there are also occasional examples of mismanaged banks, department stores and many incorporated business institutions.

The New York & New Haven Railroad and the New York Central Railroad are commonly cited as glaring instances of railroad mismanagement. But these institutions are, happily, the exceptions and not the general rule, and criticisms which properly apply to them should not be extended to cover the sound and well-conducted railroad properties of the country.

It should be our pride as an American newspaper to recognize and exploit the fact that American securities are among the best and soundest in the world, and that American businessmen, as a rule, are among the ablest and most honorable in the world.

We can recognize these creditable facts and still advocate convincingly a policy of Government Ownership of the railroads, for the time has come when the consumers of the country, and the producers of the country, and the general business of the country require that the railroads shall not increase their transportation rates under private ownership, but shall duly reduce their transportation rates under the superior economy advantages of Public Ownership.

The government must own the railroads; but it will own them through right of purchase, not through confiscation, and through government purchase and possession the actual value of American railroad securities will be doubly insured.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

"Spring Guns and Pitfalls in the Streets"—Look Out!

Suppose That Condition Existed in a Great City and No One Objected?

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company

Suppose it were announced in this city tomorrow:

"There are spring guns in the streets, pitfalls are dug underneath the sidewalks. As you walk about at any moment your life may be destroyed. Two gangs in this city are fighting. They have set these spring guns and dug these traps in the hope of killing each other. You go abroad at your peril. LOOK OUT!"

If you read that sort of a sign you would say to yourself "The people in this city are crazy. Why do they ALLOW two gangs of ruffians to fight? And if they must allow them to fight, why do they allow them to have their spring guns and their traps killing innocent people?"

You could scarcely imagine such a thing in this day.

It is true that gangs of ruffians and murderers in a big city would not be allowed to use dynamite under the sidewalks, or put spring guns in the parks, or death traps in dark alleys.

The people would say to them that in the first place they must not fight. And in the second place, that if they did fight they mustn't risk innocent lives.

But what we have suggested by way of comparison for the

How Helen Helped

CHAPTER XI.—A DANGEROUS STRATAGEM

As Helen left the office with just a "good night" on her way out Frank thought it strange, as she usually stopped at his desk for a few words. This time, however, Helen was going to meet Paul Van Buren, and she did not want Frank to know of her appointment. Paul was waiting for her, and said: "Come on, Helen; I know a nice, quiet little restaurant where we can have a nice dinner and talk." So they walked around the corner and down the street. As they came to a poorly-lighted part of the sidewalk Helen noticed a big limousine purring alongside the curb. The next thing she realized she was in it with Paul Van Buren, sitting beside her as they whirled down the street.

"What does this mean, Mr. Van Buren," demanded Helen, "and where are we going?"

"Oh, we are just going to a little inn I know of, where we can talk and there will be no one to disturb us."

As they glided along in the big silent car Helen was just about as scared as she had ever been in her life, but she resolved to bluff it out and not let Paul know she was frightened. Van Buren tried to be very nice. He told Helen of his love for her and wanted her to go away with him.

"I have all the money we will ever need," said he, "and we can fly away to Japan or any place you name. You can have diamonds, clothes, anything you want, only you must agree to leave this town with me."

All this time Helen was busily thinking how she detested this rat and wondering how she could learn something about his forging the check for which Frank had been accused. They finally stopped at a little roadside inn, where Van Buren ordered a very elaborate dinner, all through which he drank large quantities of champagne. He insisted that Helen do likewise, but she excused herself with a laugh, saying it would only make her feel sick, and that would spoil the fun. But, try as she would, she could not induce him to say anything about the forged check. Then Helen coaxed him to give her just one day to think over going away, and in the meantime to take her home at once.

On the way back the champagne had its effect, and when the car reached Helen's home she darted out of the car, leaving Van Buren aglow and—minus the kiss he had demanded for returning.—H. C.

THE WAR TAX IN BOMBILOO

By WEX JONES

In Bombiloo the beautiful, that far Pacific Isle,
Where fashion's height of fashion is a necklace and a smile,
The sun is ever shining as if 'twere always noon,
Except when he's relieved at night by the wide-eyed sentry moon.
Oh, Bombiloo's a peaceful Isle, a spot to lounge and doze,
While overhead the palm-leaves crisp, as the grateful sea-wind blows.
Oh, lucky Bombiloolooo, of whom the biggest dub
Has shady spots to stretch in—and nature finds the grub!

In Bombiloo the beautiful, the peaceful flow of life
Is never interrupted by the bugle or the fife;
No rataplan of drums is heard, no boom of heavy guns,
For war is work, and work is what the Bombiloolooo shuns.

But even out in Bombiloo, from battlefields afar,
Faint o'er the azure leagues is heard the echoing din of war;
And Bangaroo, the chieftain, in other matters lax,
Decreed—as in the U. S. A.—the war required a tax.

As the Isle was rich in cocoanuts, he said he'd tax the groves,
But had to turn to something else when the growers kicked in droves;
The sea being very bounteous, he'd clap the tax on fish,
But the fishermen protested and he had to heed their wish.
And so it went with Bangaroo, for all the dusky brothers
Were strong for war taxation—if the burden fell on others;
But at length the harassed chieftain made a hit with friends and foes
By a statesmanlike solution—he imposed a tax on clothes!

big city and the gangs of ruffians is exactly what "CIVILIZED NATIONS" are doing.

Some of the civilized nations are fighting each other—gangs of ruffians and murderers.

And they have put dynamite mines in the ocean, and in the seas, in harbors.

And those that have no quarrel with any nation, those who would go about their business in ships, do so at their peril.

The different nations plant dynamite where any ship may strike it, and they calmly say, "We are fighting each other. Your ships go about at their peril."

A nice kind of civilization we enjoy!

Nearly all the power of the world is concentrated on murder. The high seas strewn with death traps, every ship that sails, though it may be neutral and have no quarrel, risks its cargo and human life.

The thing cannot be helped for this time. But when this particular outbreak of murder and avarice, using murder to gain territory or trade, comes to an end, CONDITIONS OUGHT TO CHANGE.

Millions of men are going to lose their lives in battle. Other millions will die of disease.

Tens of millions will suffer hunger and be impoverished.

Civilization will be set back for centuries. ALL BECAUSE MEN ARE SUCH FOOLS AS TO GIVE AUTHORITY OVER LIFE AND PROPERTY TO INDIVIDUAL RULERS PERMITTING THEM TO MAKE WAR.

No matter what may come from this riot of international murder, one thing should come, and that is AN END OF KINGS—AN END TO HAPSBURGS, GUELPHS, HOHENZOLLERNS AND THE WHOLE BROOD OF DAMNABLE "DIVINE RULERS."

Nations should settle their quarrels as do individuals. They should have their international courts, and submit international questions to them, as the citizens submit all questions to the courts.

The world is going through the valley of murder, blood and destruction.

It ought to come out of the other end of the valley with at least one idea firmly fixed in its brain—MURDER DOESN'T PAY, whether it be individual murder between citizens or wholesale murder between nations.

At the end of this war the people should be able to say, finally and permanently, "It is us that you 'kill': we are those that die in the trenches and die in the trenches and contribute our children to your game.

"NO MORE WAR!"
